Congressmen Cool to FDR's Post-War Program, See Delay on Action

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Congressional leaders today received the administration's post-war and social security expansion programs according to their political beliefs, but neither Democrats nor Republicans held out any hope that legislation would be begun in 1943.

Thus, with this cool reception, the most grandiose scheme for making over the American way of life ever espoused by an agency of the federal government, appeared to be shelved at least temporarily.

Privately, some legislators went so far as to declare that transmission of the ponderous documents to the congress at this time was merely President Roosevelt's way of establishing the record of what he has asked of the 78th congress and what it has failed to do.

Publicly, however, both senators and representatives pleaded the press of other vital war and tax duties as being the reason why the reform legislation can not be instituted this year.

Sen. George (D) Ga., chairman of the senate finance committee—the senate group which would consider both tax and social security legislation—declared: "I don't think there will be any social security legislation enacted this session. I don't believe congress will be ready to proceed with legislation of that type in view of tax and other matters now occupying its attention."

Sen. Hill (D) Ala., asserted that the president's program should be given immediate attention, but he doubted that congress could get to it.

Sen. Vandenberg (R) Mich., stated that he did not see how congress could act this session on a program it has taken three years to prepare.

Members of the house ways and means committee echoed these sentiments and agreed that there was little hope that the committee could take up any part of the many-faceted program until at least late in the year.

The post-war program of the national resources planning board—the result of three years of investigation and compilation—was laid at the door of congress with the stern reminder from President Roosevelt that "men in the armed forces and all those engaged in the war effort rightly expect us to be considering their future welfare."

The document, recommending far-reaching economic and social changes, was divided into two parts—plans for the transition of American life from a war to peace footing, and plans for the way of life to be formulated by government in the post-war era.

The second report—dealing with expansion of social security — was accepted generally as the American counterpart of the British Beveridge plan, designed to provide "freedom from want" for Americans "from the cradle to the grave."

The recommendations by which this was to be accomplished did not extend to dollars and cents outline of benefits, but were confined to general policies and principles to be enacted into law. These included:

1. Formal acceptance by the federal government of responsibility for insuring jobs at decent pay to all those able to work regardless of whether or not they can pass a means test.
2. Immediate enactment of permanent and temporary disability insurance.
3. Extension of coverage of old age and survivors insurance and continuing efforts to provide more adequate minimum benefits.
4. Reorganization of unemployment compensation laws to provide broadened coverage, more nearly adequate payments, benefits for at least 26 weeks, and replacement of the present state-federal system by a wholly federal administrative organization and a single

RAF ATTACKS BLAST 2,000 NAZI PLANTS

1,000,000 Germans Are Made Homeless By Raids, Says Air Secretary.

(By International News Service)

LONDON — Two thousand German factories and industrial establishments have been destroyed or blasted out of action by the Royal Air Force, Secretary of State for Air Sir Archibald Sinclair told the house of commons today.

More than 1,000,000 Germans have been rendered homeless by the pulverizing attacks, which Sinclair said would continue with increasing strength. He warned, however, that the German air force at any time might attempt retaliation in force.

Sir Archibald had stirring praise for American pilots and bombardiers whom he called "lion-hearted and skillful fighters."

"Their methods are a complement of ours," he said. "They are precious and welcome allies.

"The more American bombers that come to take part in the air offensive against Germany, the better we shall be pleased and the sooner the malignant power of Germany will be broken."

Sinclair announced decision to establish a separate air transport command for the R. A. F., obviously for invasion of continental Europe.

But the bulk of his report, in the course of which he introduced air estimates for the current year, dealt with the destruction wrought upon Germany.

Already, Sinclair said, R. A. F. bombers have destroyed or seriously damaged approximately 2,000 German factories and industrial works and rendered substantially 1,000,000 people homeless, not counting large numbers evacuated through fear of air attack. As a result, he said, towns and cities in eastern Germany, including

Brown Opposed to Searching Homes For Canned Goods

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown said today he would not tolerate searching of private homes for violation of OPA regulations "except in the most flagrant cases."

Brown reported racketeers posing as OPA officials had attempted in some cities "to seize stocks of canned foods by intimidating householders" and that "in one city there was a story that an OPA man had entered a home without permission to check up on a supposed failure to declare stocks of processed foods."

"I believe, of course, that all citizens have the right to be inviolate in their homes, and I will not tolerate the searching of private homes except in the most flagrant cases, such as where a house is being used to conceal black market operations, and where the full legal procedure of obtaining a search warrant is followed," Brown said.

HE MUST DIE

Supreme Court Upholds Slayer's Conviction.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — William Patrick Jennings of Youngstown must die in Ohio's electric chair March 31 for the fatal beating of James Osfald, 18, which occurred during an argument over an automobile collision last August.

The state supreme court refused yesterday to interfere with an appellate court verdict upholding Jennings' conviction and fixed March 31 as the execution date.

Offers Plan For City Aid To Farmers

J. A. C. Would Establish 'Clearing House' To Enroll Help.

A plan that would provide a temporary labor supply for Richland county farmers during the planting and harvest seasons was offered last night by the Mansfield Junior Association of Commerce at a farm forum session after nearly 100 farmers had argued for and against the Triple-A program without proposing any solution to their labor and production problems.

Sponsored by the county Triple-A committee, the session was addressed by E. E. Durrec, regional AAA field man from Defiance county, in the John Simpson junior high school auditorium.

James Morgan and Richard Burnham, members of a special J. A. C. labor committee, told the farmers that a labor "clearing house" through which farmers could obtain city workers on short notice to help them with their spring and summer work would be set up in Mansfield within two weeks.

The J. A. C. proposal brought a number of questions from the audience but few expressions of approval.

Henry Fackler, Plymouth, head of the state and county Marketing Quota Protest associations, wanted to know how long the city workers could be on the job in the afternoons. Another complained that farmers might be held responsible for injuries to part-time workers, and a third suggested that a farmer might have to operate under industrial compensation laws if he employed three or more workers.

Learning that workers would be available probably after 2 or 3 p. m., Fackler said that wouldn't give them much time for farm work, or the farmer much time

HITLER ILL?

Physician Reported Called Urgently to Berchtesgaden.

STOCKHOLM — (U.P.) — Ferdinand Sauerburch, Adolf Hitler's personal physician, was reported today to have been summoned urgently to Berchtesgaden, Hitler's Bavarian home.

There have been persistent rumors recently that Hitler has been taken ill, even placed under restraint for mental disorders.

Oliver Crona, Swedish alienist, denied published reports that he had been summoned to Koenigsberg, East Prussia, to treat an unidentified patient, but other sources insisted that he had just returned from a three-day visit to that city.

Crona's reported visit to Koenigsberg led to speculation that he might have been called there to treat either Hitler or German Reichs-Marshal Hermann Goering.

Senate Expected To Give Allies Lend-Lease Birthday Gift.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — Congress today gives America's allies a "birthday present" which already has amounted to nearly $10,000,000,000.

A one-year extension of lend-lease, which otherwise expires June 30, is scheduled in the senate ths afternoon—second anniversary of the enactment of the act which made America "the arsenal of democracy" nine months before the attack on Pearl Harbor.

Snow Serves as Slat e for Rescue Message

Searching a stretch of wilderness of Alaska for victims of a plane crash, U. S. Coast Guardsmen found all six occupants of the plane, two of them dead, and then used the snow as a slate on which to write a message for help. The messages are seen in this photo taken from another rescue plane. Note line of Coast Guardsmen walking through the snow, arrow. (U. S. Coast Guard Photo.)

Street Department Gets New 'Vitals' For Old Truck To Be Used In Collection.

Having obtained government priority releases on parts needed to rejuvenate an obsolete department truck, Street Commissioner Charles Hebel today likely furnished a solution to the tin can salvage problem confronting city officials.

"The truck is old, but she's running and will do for rounding up household tin cans for the war effort," Hebel said.

War Production Board representatives in December directed the city to create a salvage division of the garbage department and $260 was voted by council for buying a truck but the carrier sought was otherwise disposed of. Garbage Disposal Superintendent Lester Linham is authorized to

Tax Office to Be Open Sunday

To accommodate the expected last-minute rush of Mansfield income tax payers, the internal revenue office in the postoffice building today announced it would be open Sunday, and at the same time extended its usual week-day hours.

The office, Deputy Collectors said, will be open from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. Other hours have been changed, as follows: Saturday, 8 a. m. to 8 p. m., Monday, 8 a. m. to 12 midnight.

Deputy collectors not only will receive returns but will assist in preparing them.

MORE COFFEE

Ration To Be Increased on March 22, Brown Announces.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown today announced a 16 per cent increase in the coffee ration in the next period beginning March 22.

Stamp No. 26 in war ration book No. 1 will be good for one pound of coffee during the five weeks from March 22 to April 25. The present ration is one pound for six weeks ending March 21.

"This increased supply," Brown said, "results from the improvement during the past few weeks in the import situation. Coffee imports for February have exceeded estimates by more than 20 per cent."

Rabid Dog Alarm Gives Impetus to Vaccination Drive

Police destruction of a dog very evidently suffering from rabies lent impetus today to the city-county health department campaign for vaccination of all Richland county and Mansfield dogs during the 60-day quarantine period which started last Sunday.

Mrs. Mabel Wright, 219 West First street, summoned police yesterday evening when a dog, frothing at its mouth was scampering about the yard at her home. Patrolman Carl Beard and Arthur Conrady shot the animal and turned over the carcass to County Dog Warden William C. Miller. The head was sent to the state health department laboratories at Columbus today for rabies tests.

Rep. Luce Fails to Succumb To Roosevelt's Famed Charm

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt has won a lot of new friends among freshmen members of congress—but the converts do not include Rep. Clare Boothe Luce, R., Conn., nor Sen. Kenneth Wherry, R., Neb.

Wherry, the Omaha undertaker who succeeded George W. Norris, told reporters there "ought to be a law" against anything as high-powered as the president's ability to win friends and influence people.

Mrs. Luce smiled as she left the White House social for new congressmen last night, but said that while the president's remarks were "most interesting," what impressed her most was a "tragic and beautiful portrait of Abraham Lincoln that I never noticed before."

"Were you converted, Mrs. Luce?" she was asked. She shook her head.

Rep. Ed Rowe, R., O., said he wasn't converted, "but I was softened up a lot."

Rowe said the president "gave us the first clear picture of the effects of the war of attrition we're waging in the pacific. . ."

NATION FACES HARDEST YEAR, SAYS REPORT

Truman Group Calls Possible Food Shortage Most Acute Problem.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — The special senate war investigating committee warned Americans today that the next year would be the toughest and grimmest in the nation's history, both on the fighting and home fronts, but that final victory would be theirs.

"If we are to do the job we have set for ourselves," the committee, headed by Sen. Harry S. Truman, D., Mo., said, "this year will demand harder work, longer hours, greater sacrifices."

The committee's second annual report praised American production, asserting that it "cannot be equalled by our enemies," but said that in many other respects the war effort was not being advanced with enough vigor.

Specifically, the committee said that agriculture had not been, but must be, recognized as a necessary war industry. More farm machinery must be made available, and farm workers must be exempt from the draft, the committee said.

The committee said the potential food shortage was one of the most acute problems facing the country.

The report said that if the OPA had made canning sugar available soon enough and in sufficient quantity, point rationing of canned foods might not have been so drastic.

"The committee recommends that every effort be made to assure skilled labor on the farms," the report said, "to assure that tin plate and other supplies are made available to commercial canners for preserving of fruits and vegetables and to assure that sugar and other supples are made available to housewives with a

WANTS RECALL

Bender Raps Standley, Asks Probe of State Department.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — Rep. George H. Bender, (R.,O.) yesterday told the house that U. S. Ambassador to Russia William H. Standley should be recalled for his "irresponsible" statement that the Russians were not informed about American aid for the Soviet war effort.

He called for a congressional investigation of the state department.

"Personally, I am thoroughly sick of the near distasters to which certain elements in the state department have brought this nation," Bender said. "It is my opinion that Mr. Robert Murphy should be recalled from North Africa, Ambassador Hayes should be recalled from Madrid, and that Admiral Standley should be recalled from Moscow.

Circle Vyazma As Nazis Put Up Stiff Fight

Germans Hurling Heavy Forces Into Come-Back Front Near Kharkov With Battle Reported Still In Indecisive Stage.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Secretary of War Stimson said today Fighting French troops had made contact with other French legions in a flanking movement around the southern end of the Mareth line in Tunisia, thereby sealing the trap on 250,000 troops under Field Marshal Erwin Rommel.

(By Associated Press)

Soviet headquarters declared today the Red armies on the central front had captured at least 44 towns and villages, crushed stiffening German resistance and advanced within 80 miles of Adolf Hitler's old headquarters at Smolensk.

Although virtually out-flanked by the Red army's capture of Bely, the Nazis were battling desperately to defend their grip on the key bastion of Vyazma, 135 miles west of Moscow, the last major barrier on the road to Smolensk.

Latest Soviet dispatches said the Russians had all but completed the encirclement of Vyazma, leaving the Germans only a narrow corridor for retreat toward Smolensk.

Red army columns were reported driving forward with the utmost speed along a broad front, with the Germans bitterly resisting and using dug-in tanks as pillboxes.

Russian shock troops were reported within 13 miles of Vyazma at the nearest point, and a communique said more than 20 towns fell to Soviet forces operating in the vicinity. In addition, "several dozen" villages were engulfed in the Bely sector, 70 miles northwest of Vyazma.

On the flaming Kharkov front, 400 miles below Moscow, Red army headquarters said the Germans were continuing to throw great masses of reserves into their come-back offensive against the "Soviet Pittsburgh," but so far the battle appeared to be indecisive.

Hitler's high command said the Germans had driven closer to Kharkov and "the battle is still being waged at the northern and western edges of the city."

Berlin claimed two days ago that Nazi shock troops were only 12 miles from the big Ukraine steel center, whose recapture by the Nazis would threaten the middle of a 400-mile front in southern Russia.

Frontline dispatches said the Russians beat off a series of violent Nazi tank and infantry assaults south and southwest of Kharkov, killing 800 Germans and destroying 26 tanks in one sector and wrecking nine tanks in another.

The Soviet command said a "ferocious engagement" was developing south of Kharkov.

A Soviet communique said the Germans hanged a group of Italian soldiers in the public square of a town after beating up a trainload of Satellite troops because they refused to fight.

On the Tunisian front, Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's promise to give the Axis a "very bloody nose" was marked by exploratory thrusts against the 60-mile-long Mareth line in southern Tunisia as the British 8th army prepared for a climactic assault.

Rain and sandstorms prevented large-scale operations, but Montgomery's big guns — the weapons that broke up six Axis attacks with the loss of 52 tanks —were reported raining havoc on the Mareth defense works.

Allies Blast Five More Jap Ships, Pound Burma Invaders

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—Japanese fliers, attempting their biggest air raid on Guadalcanal in weeks, were turned back short of their objective by intercepting American airmen who shot down four enemy planes, the navy announced today.

(By Associated Press)

Allied warplanes, striking at Japan's vital supply lines, were officially credited with destructive attacks on five more Japanese merchant ships in the southwest Pacific, while on the Burma front the RAF continued to punish Japanese invasion forces.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters said United Nations fliers ranging far out over the seas north of Australia bombed three enemy vessels in the Celebes islands, Dutch East Indies, including a 7,000-ton ship which was left "burning fiercely" and "probably a total loss."

Two other Japanese merchant vessels were attacked off the north coast of New Guinea. Several near hits were scored with 1,000-pound bombs, and at least one of the ships, a 5,000-tonner, was damaged severely.

In Burma, RAF night raiders pounded the Japanese base at Akyab on the Bay of Bengal, following up daylight attacks on Japanese troops in the Rathe-

MOVIES SHOWN FOR CONVERSATIONAL CLUB

Mrs. J. M. Clark Shows Films of 'Industrial Oddities' And 'Cities of Ohio'; Dessert Luncheon Meeting Held At Home of Mrs. Merritt Giles.

MOVING PICTURES, shown by Mrs. J. M. Clark constituted the program, Thursday afternoon of the Conversational club, when members met at the home of Mrs. Merritt Giles, 589 Crescent road for a dessert luncheon and regular meeting.

Mrs. P. W. Endriss presided at the luncheon table, which was centered with an arrangement of spring flowers.

At a short business meeting, 100 per cent participation in the victory book campaign was announced.

The first of the films, shown by Mrs. Clark, was entitled "Historical Ohio." It showed the preparation for the settlement of Marietta by the Ohio Land company and the difficulties of its overland trip as re-enacted for the Susqui Centennial of that event.

"Industrial Oddities," the second film shown by Mrs. Clark, reviewed the making of blown glass, plastics and glass cloth and the culture of orchids. In all four of these, Ohio firms are the most prominent.

"Cities of Ohio" will be presented as the next program of the Conversational club, by Mrs. Lee Twitchell. That meeting is scheduled for March 24, and will be held at the Women's Club with Mrs. Harold Burns as hostess.

Publicity Group Of Moose Women Have March Meet

The regular business and social meeting of the Publicity committee, Women of the Moose, was held Wednesday night at the Moose home, with Mrs. C. K. Altman, chairman in charge.

POSTPONE MEETING.

The regular meeting of the Catherine Von Bora class of the First Lutheran church has been postponed from March 10 until March 17, due to Ash Wednesday.

MISS JEANNIE GRAHAM WEDS PFC. L. BERGER

Wedding Solemnized In St. Peter's Catholic Church By Msgr. Goebel; Miss Mary Berger, Bridegroom's Sister, Is Maid Of Honor.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT A. GRAHAM, 138 Willow street are today announcing the marriage of their daughter, Miss Jeannie Graham to Pfc. Lawrence Berger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Berger, 240 Superior street. The marriage was solemnized Wednesday, March 3 in the St. Peters Catholic church.

Msgr. Goebel read the single ring ceremony at 9:30 a. m.

The bride was attired in a fitted street length frock of white wool, with green trimming. She wore green accessories, and a shoulder corsage of red roses and buds.

For her maid of honor, Miss Graham chose Miss Mary Berger, sister of the bridegroom, who wore a two piece yellow suit with brown accessories. Her shoulder corsage was of sweetpeas and roses.

Brother of the bridegroom, Elmer Berger served as best man.

Nuptial music was furnished by Sister M. Theo Clete, O. S. F., organist, who played "Wedding March" by Guilmant and "Gregorian High Mass" in honor of the Blessed Virgin. The offoratory was "Sancta Maria" and the recessional was sung by the junior and senior boys' choir.

Immediately after the wedding a reception was held at the home of the bridegroom, after which the newly married couple left for a short wedding trip.

Pfc. Berger, who returned from overseas duty in October, will return to his station in San Francisco in the near future. The new Mrs. Berger will remain in this city with her parents.

Sorority Meets With Miss Art, Betty Eichler

The Misses Evelyn Art and Betty Eichler entertained members of the Delta Sigma Zeta sorority Wednesday night at the former's home, 248 Bartley avenue, at the regular meeting.

Business meeting was conducted by Miss Art, president. Reports were given by committee chairman.

Following the business meeting, seven young women were welcomed into the sorority as active members. They were the Misses Betty Cole, Betty Pfleiderer, Clara Lorentz, Regina Finney and Billy Mayberry.

Miss Joan Eichen, Miss Joyce Hubbs, Miss Jane Gibbs, Miss Peggy Walery, Miss Gruen Stalhaber and Miss Bobby Lemly were given the oath of pledgeship.

Luncheon was served from a table centered with an attractive arrangement of flowers and lighted tapers as the centerpiece, by the hostesses.

CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY.

Mrs. Robert Lamb entertained for her son Tommy's birthday, the members of the Pawnee den of Pack 2, when they met at the Haley home, 620 Coleman road, recently. Decorations and favors were in the St. Patrick scheme. Prizes were won by Stanley Day, James Brown and Garry Haley. Others present were Billy Russell, Kenneth Day, Leroy Farmer, Jay Herbert and the den chiefs, Jim Day and David Ronell.

H. Huston Has Carpenter P. T. A. Panel Discussion

"Vocational Adjustment" was the theme of the March meeting of the Carpenter Parent Teachers association, held recently at the school over which J. M. Lehman, president, presided.

The program opened with tap dancing by Diana Funston and Joan Brokaw. Marily Bell played two piano solos.

Henry Huston, program chairman, was in charge of the panel discussion. His questions were answered by Jesse Beer, principal of Newman school and Vernal S. Mann, school psychologist. Their discussion brought out the need for guidance for a planned curriculum for each child.

It was found that this may be facilitated through tests which indicate the capacity and ability of each child. If the aims of this coordinated guidance program are carried out, each child will more nearly be assisted in finding the work best suited to his talents.

During the business session, members were urged to attend the lectures of Dr. Frank D. Sluiz, beginning March 29. Mrs. Robert Davis made announcements concerning victory gardens. W. C. Ward reported on religious education in the Mansfield schools. He asked the group to support this worthwhile project. It was voted to send four delegates to the District P. T. A. conference in Elyria, April 6.

The social hour was in charge of Mrs. C. L. Hershey, Mrs. Robert Quinn and Mrs. Irvin Thompson.

The next meeting will be held on April 13. At that time a safety program will be presented by the children.

by REX HESS

This is sad news for my friend Harry the Merry Mehock.

You lost a good track man, Harry, when that Lester Diskosky was going to high school. The kid could run. But that you couldn't be expected to discover as long as he was marching around in a band uniform and tooting his trombone.

For four long years young Lester Diskosky was blowing his own horn in the Mansfield high school band. and I suspect you heard him more than once, Harry, but how were you to know that his horn was saying: "With lungs like these I can run like the breeze."

"Diskosky?" says Mehock, "I can't even place him."

It took the navy to discover that Diskosky's trombone blowing bellows were built for endurance, and his legs, that had paraded up and down so often in a band uniform, were really meant for flying over a cinder track.

From Iowa City, Iowa, comes the word that Vindicator Squadron won the medley relay in the monthly cadet regimental track championships at Iowa Pre-Flight school last week. And running on that championship medley relay team were: William McKeever of Byesville, O., Lowell Hall of Palmyra, Ill., Lester Diskosky of Mansfield, O., and James Adams of Royal Oak, Mich.

Wails Merry Harry: "Oh, good goshky, "How did I miss that kid, Diskosky?"

Lester's father, Fred Diskosky, explains all.

"When he first started to high school," says Fred, "Lester had his heart set on playing football.

"And I wouldn't let him play football.

"So the kid joined the band. and he blew that trombone for four years. He gave up athletics altogether, and never took any part in sports from that day on.

"But out at Iowa he had to take up some sport, and coming from Mansfield, with its famous Mansfield Relays, he just naturally went out for track. And there he is, a champion.

Making a tour of The News-Journal plant the other day, with members of the staff of the John Simpson junior high paper, was Bob Timmons' kid sister, Betty.

She told me the former Mansfield Tyge. football guard was put on K. P. his first day in camp in the army, but that he likes the army fine, now.

"He's doing a lot of wrestling," says Betty, "and I bet that's fun."

That we found out a year ago when Rassler Bob Timmons, who should have been grappling as a welterweight, went to the finals of the light-heavyweight division in the district high school meet.

HERSHEY TRIUMPHS OVER PITTSBURGH

(By United Press)

A three-goal [illegible] second period sent the Hershey Bears off to a 4-1 triumph over Pittsburgh's Hornets in the American Hockey league last night, boosting the Bears' lead over second-place Buffalo.

Washington's Lions rallied with two goals in the final period for a 2-1 win over the Providence Reds.

MACK SIGNS

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Four members of the Cleveland Indians' prospective 1943 squad were unsigned today after second baseman Ray Mack endorsed his contract and notified Manager Lou Boudreau he would be on hand for the opening of spring training Monday at Lafayette, Ind. Mack rejected the Tribe's first offer. Unsigned members are Jeff Heath, Otto Denning, Chubby Dean and Eddie Turchin.

Dixon Gets Another Mile Test

Meets Dodds, Mitchell, And Burnham Again.

By LAWTON CARVER

NEW YORK —(INS)— Whether Frank Dixon, of New York university, is going to be a great miler or a mediocre one will be decided to some extent Saturday night in the Knights of Columbus games at Madison Square Garden, last indoor track meet of the season here. There was a time when a few more or less astute observers of the track and field scene were saying that this freshman looked like the answer to the four minute mile, but all that has stopped now and what they want to know is whether he can run with his head as well as with his feet. The jury is out on that one.

He seems to have everything except brainwork as a runner. Proof of this can be found in the fact that coming down to last week's ICAA games he had run 4:09.6, 4:10.6, 4:10.8 and 4:11.4 to win two of four starts. That is a great record for consistency, but then promptly spoiled all by losing the I.C.4-A mile to Don Burnham, of Dartmouth, by the span of a hand with both clocked in the utterly impressive time of 4:16.2.

Thus Dixon not only lost to Burnham but he ran one of the poorest races of his brief career. The point that he could have won that event with any kind of a race is not important. He didn't win it and he didn't look good losing it because he let Burnham out-think him from starting pistol to finishing tape.

Burnham is among the entries for the K. of C. mile. Others include, besides Dixon, Gilbert Dodds, of the Boston A. A. Earl Mitchell, of Indiana, and lesser lights. The race will be waged among Burnham, Dixon, Dodds and Mitchell.

Despite his youth, Dixon is supposed to have the speed and stamina to get down near his record time any time he goes, but he lacks the ability to pace himself accordingly.

Aside from all that, the K. of C. games will, as usual, no doubt produce some records. Contestants will have rounded into competitive shape in all the other events that have gone before and statistics show that in the past this event has produced more standout performances than any of the others preceding it.

BABE PUTS ANOTHER TROPHY ON SHELF

LOS ANGELES —(INS)— Mrs. Babe Didrickson Zaharias, often called the world's greatest woman athlete, today added another trophy to her collection by overpowering state champion, Clara Callender, 4 and 3, in the finals of the 21st annual mid-winter women 's golf tournament.

Ross Honored In New York

Barney Appears as Red Cross Drive Booster.

NEW YORK — (INS) — Barney Ross, former world lightweight and welterweight boxing champion who kissed American soil when he returned wounded from Guadalcanal, will be doubly feted in New York tomorrow.

Coming to New York primarily to appear in the American Red Cross spectacle "Red Cross at War," the Chicago fighter will mix a little pleasure with business when he visits Madison Square Garden tomorrow night to see the clash between Tami Mauriello and Jimmy Bivins who are scheduled for a ten-round go in the heavyweight division.

Prior to his appearance at the Garden, the fighting marine corporal who proved he could "take it" both in and out of the ring, will attend a luncheon at which he will be welcomed by such luminaries as former Mayor James J. Walker, Lieut. Jack Dempsey of the U. S. coast guard and Lieut. Benny Leonard of the U. S. maritime service.

Highlight of Ross' appearance at the garden will be the presentation to him by former Mayor Walker of the Edward J. Neil memorial plaque, an award of the Boxing Writers' association given annually for the man who did the most for boxing. An autographed painting, bearing the signature of many of Ross' friends also will be presented.

CHICAGO—(INS)—Corp. Barney Ross of the U. S. Marines, one of Chicago's heroes of the Guadalcanal fighting, will spend a few hours in his hometown tonight before flying on to New York.

The former world lightweight, junior welterweight and welterweight champion was to have arrived in Chicago shortly before noon today, but he was delayed by his appearance on a radio program originating in Hollywood, Calif., last night.

* * *

He will be greeted at the Municipal airport tonight by Mayor Edward J. Kelly, Barney's mother, Mrs. Sarah Rasofsky, other relatives and numerous friends. His mother particularly bemoaned his brief stay, saying:

"If Barney only could stay longer I would fix him up some gefullte fish; he's crazy about it."

Barney is scheduled to leave by plane at midnight for New York

Ortiz Defends Bantam Crown

OAKLAND, Calif.—(AP)—There's no disputing Manuel Ortiz's clear title to the world bantamweight championship not after the pasting he gave challenger Lou Salica last night.

The shifty, hard-socking little Mexican from El Centro, Calif., clouted up the 118 pound title question by stopping the ex-champ from Brooklyn in the 11th round of a 15-rounder that was Ortiz' right from the start.

Ortiz won the title from Salica in Hollywood last August, and only the New York State Athletic commission refused to recognize him as champion because the fight went only 12 rounds instead of 15. Ortiz had been accepted by the National Boxing Association and the 47 states it controls.

Salica, a master boxer, had to call on his 12 years of ring experience to save himself from a worse beating. Ortiz had the edge in every round battering his aging rival with a fearful assortment of blows to the midsection and face. Salica was groggy from a body pelting as the tenth ended—and from it came. It was the first time Salica had been knocked out in his professional career.

A howling crowd of 7,000 paid $10,2[illegible] to see the fight.

Ortiz weighed in at 117½ and Salica 118.

A GYM DANDY YARN.

This isn't exactly a sport story, but Athletic Director R. T. Hastie of Alpena, Mich., claims it happened in his office by the school gymnasium. . . . When ration books were being given out in the gym, his office was occupied by the state tuberculosis x-ray machine. . . . Two women entered the wrong door and asked, "Is this where we go?" . . . Each was given a sheet, directed to a side room to change their clothes, and as they came out robed to take their places before the x-ray machine, one remarked: "Isn't it awful what we have to do to get ration books?"

ONE-MINUTE SPORTS PAGE.

North Carolina colleges are scheduling basketball doubleheaders for next year and George Washington already has been booked into several of them. . . . Jimmy Bivins, the Cleveland heavyweight, is a pretty good pianist, machinist and cartoonist in his spare time and claims he'd like to play a piano solo for the fight mob after playing a glove solo on Tami Mauriello.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR.

Art Cohn, Oakland (Calif.) Tribune: "Lou Nova may be the dumb oaf some of us insist he is, but he was smart enough to buy a six-acre ranch at Encino for cash the other day, which is more than us wise guys are doing. . . . He's calling it El Cosmic Rancho."

Hagg Sees Chance to Run Here

Will Come To U. S. If Transportation Found.

NEW YORK — (U.P.) — Gunder Hagg, Sweden's four-minute mile hope will come to the United States to compete against America's best trackmen, it was announced today.

The middle-distance marvel will match strides with such men as Gil Dodds, Earl Mitchell and Frank Dixon over the shorter distances and against Greg Rice in the longer races.

National A. A. U. Secretary Daniel J. Ferris revealed that Hagg and two companions, Miler Arne Anderson and Hurdler Haakon Lidman, had been invited to compete in the United States.

"We expect them to be here for that National A. A. U. championships and they also will compete in some other outdoor events," Ferris said.

The long-strided Swede within three months last summer broke the world mile, three-mile and 2,000 meter marks each twice and lowered the international standards for 1,500 meters, 5,000 meters and the two-mile run.

He started July 2 with a 4:06.2 mile, breaking Sid Wooderson's 4:06.4 mark, and two days later clipped the two-mile record from 8:47.8 to 8:53.2. He raced the fastest 1,500 meters on record July 17, reducing Jack Lovelock's 3:47.8 to 3:45.8. He lowered the time for 2,000 meters to 5:16.4 on July 21 and then cut it to 5:11.8 on Aug. 23.

Next Hagg turned his attention to the mile, whipped it down to 4:04.6 on Sept. 4, and moved back to three miles for a 13:35.4 record. Finishing up Sept. 20, Hagg marked up a pair of new listings, reducing the three-mile to 13.32.4 and trimming the 5,000-meters from 1:08.8 to 13:58.2.

Supplies Lose To Mt. Vernon

Edged 38-40 In Cage Tilt Last Night.

Mt. Vernon City league champions edged out a 40 to 38 victory over Mansfield Athletic Supplies last night at the Y.M.C.A.

Trailing 18-17 at halftime, the Knox county boys outscored the Supplies 11-10 in the third period and 12-10 in the final to gain their two-point advantage.

Flick Flockenzier, Mansfield City loop leading scorer, tossed in six buckets for 12 points to take scoring honors. Bill Eichler was close behind with 11. Beck and Mentis each had 10 for Mt. Vernon.

QUITS FOOTBALL

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Gaylon Smith, Cleveland Rams' fullback now employed at Thompson Aircraft Products Co., here, is retiring from the gridiron sport. He said he wouldn't play this fall "whether there is pro football or not."

SECOND DAUGHTER BORN TO BOUDREAUS

CHICAGO —(INS)— Lou Boudreau, manager of the Cleveland Indians, was the proud father today of a second daughter, a 6-pound, 7-ounce child born to Mrs. Boudreau, the former Miss Ella Rutter, at Ingalls Memorial hospital in suburban Harvey where they make their off-season home.

Hank Leiber Quits Giants

First Base Problems Mount Up For Ott.

By JUDSON BAILEY

NEW YORK—(AP)—The first base woes of the New York Giants are getting all tangled up again like the second act of a musical comedy.

As a matter of fact the Giants have been having trouble at first base almost annually since sweet William Terry punched out on the time clock in 1936, but right now the club is confronted with an absolute void at the position.

Johnny Mize, the big St. Louis clouster whom the Giants obtained last winter from the Cardinals, recently was classified 1-A and yesterday Hank Leiber, whom Manager Mel Ott was counting upon as a fill in at first, notified the Giants he had retired to chicken farming.

The irony of the situation is that the Giants got both Mize and Leiber a year ago principally to protect themselves against the drafting of Babe Young, their regular first baseman in 1941.

Young remained with the club all through the 1942 season, finally finishing in centerfield, but has since been called to service. Mize and Leiber both are married, but have no children.

The Giants so far have made no important move to get a first baseman, saying they will wait until Mize passes his final physical examination. They think there is a possibility he might be rejected because he bleeds excessively when cut.

* * *

On their present roster they have only one likely substitute, husky Babe Barna, who played first base for West Virginia university before starting his pro career.

Pirrone, Maxim Both Knocked Out

CLEVELAND — (INS) — Aging Chalky Wright, Los Angeles negro, held a kayo victory over Cleveland's Joe Pirrone today after putting the Cleveland feather down for the count in the third round of a 10-heat feature on Arena's boxing card here last night.

In the semi-final, Curtiss Sheppard, 187, of Pittsburgh, surprised the assemblage by knocking out Cleveland's Joe Maxim, 180½, in 51 seconds of the first round.

Other results say Henry Vasquez, Puerto Rico lightweight, gain a technical knockout over Joe Torres, also of Puerto Rico; Jackie Armitage, Pittsburgh welter, gain the decision over Joe Ross of Buffalo in five rounds and Fitzy Fitzgerald of Cleveland a two-round kayo over Jack McCahill of Pittsburgh.

TRABITZ ELECTED

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Captain of next year's Ohio State university basketball team is Lou Trabitz, junior forward from Cleveland. He was elected by teammates last night.

Saint Tom Gets Okay For Boxing

Says Father Divine Approves Ring Career.

By JACK CUDDY

NEW YORK — (U.P.) — The big Negro, "Saint Thomas," assured us that he couldn't miss. He would be the next heavyweight champion of the world.

Saint Thomas said, "If I don't become champion, I'll be the first failure Father Divine ever had. So you see I just can't miss."

Saint Thomas cut quite a figure as he stood there in his longshoreman's apparel — black cap with shiny peak, corduroy coat and denim pants. With 200 pounds of brawn on a six-foot-two beam, he took command of Stillman's gymnasium at 6:30 p. m. when the rest of the pugs had gone home. At this late hour Saint Thomas was ready to work out.

Saint Thomas, who was baptized Tommy Reed at Newman, Ga., 22 years ago, says he has been delegated by Father Divine to fight for "The Kingdom." Saint Thomas, who moved to Dayton, O., when he was a kid and who lived there until 18 months ago, says Father Divine gave him the okay for fighting, although the slogan of Divine's cult is "Peace! It's Wonderful!"

Saint Thomas, who won the Golden Gloves championship at Dayton, O., in 1939, has had but two professional fights since he came to New York. Both resulted in first-round knockouts.

At present Saint Thomas works as a longshoreman on the Weehawken, N. J., docks of the New York Central railroad—where Jim Braddock used to toil. He is trying to earn enough money to keep his aging father, mother and brood of younger brothers off the relief rolls. Father Divine despises people on relief, the Saint says.

* * *

"When I make as much money fighting as I make on the docks, I'll quit the docks," Saint Thomas said. "And that won't be long, because I have Father Divine's okay—his assurance that I'll be heavyweight champion of the world. Peace, brother—peace!"

LEE ADVANCES TO QUARTER FINALS

SEBRING, Fla. — (U.P.) — Defending champion Raleigh W. Lee of Columbus, O., three-time titleholder, faces Frank W. Sampson of Atlanta, Ga., today in the feature quarter-final round match of the National Amateur Senior Golfers' tournament.

Lee advanced easily in match play yesterday with a 6 and 4 win over R. T. Reid, Cleveland, O., as Howard O'Brien of Grand Rapids, Mich., turned in the day's only upset by sinking a 24-foot putt for a birdie three on the 20th hole to eliminate medalist W. H. Linkroum of Hackensack, N. J.

INCREASES HIS THISTLE CROP

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn.—(AP)—Tom O. Selman of Chattanooga has devoted a large portion of his farm to the production of blessed thistles, a plant needed in large quantities for certain pharmaceutical preparations.

The war has shut off the source of supply in Europe, which held a virtual monopoly on blessed thistle for many years, so Selman increased his production to 82,000 pounds last year. He expects another bumper crop this season.

LUCK FAILED

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. —(U P)— The mysterious powers of good luck charms have no effect on policemen, judging from a local colored man's experience recently. When he was held on a disorderly conduct charge, the desk sergeant removed from his pockets two horseshoes, two rabbits' feet and a buckeye. The sergeant was not impressed, and the hopeful charmfancier was booked in spite of his pocketfull of luck.

YEAR TO BRING 4 ECLIPSES; 1 VISIBLE HERE

Ohioans Will See Partial Blackout of Moon In February.

By DR. EVERETT I. YOWELL

CINCINNATI — (AP) — Four eclipses occur in 1943: two of the sun and two of the moon. One solar eclipse will be visible in the north Pacific and the other in the Indian ocean. A partial eclipse of the moon in February is the only one of these four that will be visible here.

The planets Venus, Saturn, and Jupiter will remain visible in our evening sky for nearly six months. Mars remains in the morning sky but Mercury changes frequently from morning to evening star, for it completes a synodical revolution in four months.

The sun is now moving north slowly. Its meridian altitude increases five and one-half degrees this month and the length of day increases 41 minutes. The time of sunrise remains the same for the first third of January and changes ten minutes during the rest of the month.

The time of sunset changes 31 minutes. This difference of 21 minutes is due to the change in the equation of time. The sun rose Jan. 1. at 8:57 a. m and set at 6:26 p. m., it rises Jan. 31 at 8:47 a. m. and sets at 6 57 p. m.

The earth was in Perihelion Jan. 2 and was then moving at maximum speed in its orbit. This is only one per cent greater than its average velocity of 18 and one-half miles per second

New moon occurs Jan. 6 and full moon Jan 21. The moon will be in conjunction with Mars Jan 4; with Venus and Mercury, Jan. 7; with Saturn Jan. 16; and with Jupiter, Jan. 18. The moon will occult Aldebaran Jan. 16. Immersion occurs a little after 10 p. m. and emersion an hour and a half later.

Mercury and Venus are now evening stars. Mercury reaches its greatest elongation from the sun Jan. 8 and is then 19 degrees from the sun and will be difficult to see in the twilight. It will be in conjunction with the sun Jan. 21 and then will pass into the morning sky. Venus set 50 minutes later than the sun Jan. 1 and became a brilliant object in the west.

Jupiter is in Gemini, south of Castor and Pollux. It is in opposition to the sun, Jan. 11. Saturn is in taurus, not far from Aldebaran, which marks one end of a V, the other stars being faint. Saturn now marks the end of the other side of the V. Saturn is brighter than the neighboring stars with the exception of Sirius.

Nowhere in the heavens is there as brilliant a group of stars as we now see in the east after sunset. In addition to the seven first-magnitude stars Capella, Pollux, Procyon, Aldebaran, Sirius, Rigel, and Betelguese, we have a number of second-magnitude stars and planets Saturn and Jupiter.

DECIDES WINK HAD MEANING

LOS ANGELES, Cal. — (UP) — Municipal Judge Byron Walters has ruled that woman's wink is capable of meaning so many things that it is worthy of legal investigation.

Dr. R. O. Ferguson, called in to examine the sobriety state of Mrs. Carroll McCall Humphries, arrested on a charge of drunken driving, testified that when he asked her if she had been drinking, she just said nothing, but winked at him. The judge held that this was sufficient to hold her for trial.

WAR BOOKS WINS FIRST 'I' AWARD

ATLANTA, Ga — (INS) — The book, "They Were Expendable," by William L. White, has won the first "I" awarded to books adjudged "imperative" in the war effort and comparable to the Army-Navy "E" according to Miss Mary Frances Slinger, director of libraries, headquarters, Fourth Service Command.

Publishers, booksellers, librarians and other allied interests in the book world make up the council on Books In Wartime, which has announced this unprecedented plan for all-out joint promotion of new books adjudged important contributions in the war effort and the thought of the nation.

TO LIVE WITH LOVE +++

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

(Copyright, 1943)

Hilda, Scott's sister, had gone to the movies, her only source of entertainment. As Scott left the apartment, he began to wonder when he should cease being merely a loyal friend to Carol and begin to be a probable second husband. Should he wait until he knew about the money situation for certain or should he begin at once to show affection so that when the money situation was settled, it would be a simple matter to propose, the ground work already having been laid? It wouldn't be smart to rush her.

In his car he turned on the radio and whistled a popular song. He felt swell. Carol, the party tonight, good food, good drinks, good music . . . He was lucky in having Hilda as a dependent so that he wouldn't be drafted into the army. This was before the United States entered the war. The poor guys who didn't have any dependents were going to get twenty-one bucks a month and tramping miles and miles . . . horrible!

His heart was beating excitedly when he pressed his finger against the bell outside Carol's apartment.

In a moment she stood there, lovely in a white dress.

"Hi!" he said, smiling broadly. "You look . . . good enough to eat."

She said, "I hope you're not that hungry."

Stepping into Carol's living room was like stepping into another world. It heightened his spirits to leave the drab, shabby life with the drab, shabby Hilda and to enter the bright one of Carol's good taste and beauty. This is where he belonged. This was how he should live. This was how he was going to live if.

When she was with Scott, Carol was always expecting Bill to come out of the next room, smile warmly at his old friend and say, "Hi, boy. Glad to see you. How's everything?"

"We're only half an hour late," Scott said, helping her with her soft, light blue coat. "Do you like to make a late entrance? That's a knockout dress you're wearing. What is it made of?"

"Silk jersey."

"Not Ersatz? Hilda said the other day that you didn't know what some of the stuff was."

"How is Hilda?" Poor Hilda, she always thought, remembering the pinched little face that lighted up only when her brother's name was mentioned, and the plain, cheap clothes she wore.

"Oh, she's okay," Scott said.

Stepping into the late summer twilight Carol thought, "This is the first big party I've been to since the divorce. Probably everyone I know will be there tonight except Evelyn and Bill. Lillian couldn't invite the three of us. This time she chose me.." And as the car left the city for the country, she thought, I feel safe with Scott. There is no challenge. I don't have to make any effort or fight some feelings and encourage others. He hasn't Clive's suave curiosity that makes you feel that you are glass and he can see straight through you. Scott doesn't put you on the defensive."

He asked, "Have you made any plans for the Summer, Carol."

"I don't know yet." She and Bill had always planned their vacations months ahead. In the beginning they had been too poor to leave town. In later years they had gone to the seashore or had motored north . . . Driving with Scott she recalled a series of pleasant, attractive hotel rooms and particularly the large, luxurious one they had had in Quebec.

She said, "Freda is taking little Ian north to camp. On the way back she's going to stop in New York for a few days. She asked me to meet her there. She and Ian will take their vacation on their boat and they've asked me to come along."

"Swell. You're going to take them up on that offer, aren't you?"

"I don't know, Scott."

"I haven't made any plans either," he said. If Ian would invite him on his boat for two weeks, he could be with Carol constantly and it wouldn't cost anything.

It was quite dark when they reached the Williams' country house where cocktails were being served on the terrace and where there was a slight sprinkling of unfamiliar faces among many familiar ones. Carol and Scott moved among the guests, speaking at length with Freda and Ian and then finding themselves later beside Dee and Johnny Downs. Dee, a demure-looking brunet in a print dinner frock, seemed always to have a secret pain in her eyes, and it had been said that unhappy look was the result of jealousy of the handsome, affable Johnny.

Talking with Dee about Dee's two major interests, her child and her house, Carol sensed her coolness. But it was a few minutes before she remembered that Johnny worked under Bill. No doubt Dee and Johnny had been seeing Evelyn and Bill often. And though Johnny was his friendly self, Dee seemed most uneasy, and her pained, dark eyes seemed to be looking, hoping for escape.

Johnny grinned. "Have you noticed? When the people get together they don't talk about the stock market any more. They talk about the horrors of the income tax, the strength of the army and navy and cutting down."

Carol nodded. "Yes, but women are still talking about babies and houses."

"Because women are complacent," Scott said. "They don't know."

Carol said, "Perhaps. But women also know that they must go on being normal."

When the colored boy passed the cocktails again and Johnny eagerly took another, Dee said, "Johnny, you didn't have any lunch, darling."

"Don't worry. I can handle my drinks."

"All right. I'll take another, too."

He laughed. "But you can't! You skipped lunch, too."

After buffet supper, there was dancing and bridge. Dancing with various men, Carol noticed their unfamiliar formality with her. The divorce had made the difference. No longer Bill's wife, she was free and unmarried and the husbands who had heretofore treated her with complete informality now treated her as though she was a stranger in their midst, a visitor in their clique. Now they couldn't say, "Isn't it time we got together for a little bridge?" or "How about riding up to the Springs for dinner next Sunday and some golf? We could go for a swim. Ask Bill." Now they could only say with obvious discomfort and obvious pity, "You're looking great, Carol," or "Nice party, isn't it?"

It was all so different. Were men more honest than women? Perhaps women were the better pretenders. Recently she had sensed no strain in her women friends. Usually they talked about themselves and their interests, wanting to avoid her pained silence that would follow should they cease talking. When you lose your husband and your home and you have no child, you find that there is little to talk about.

When Johnny singled her out and asked her to dance, she did so reluctantly, knowing that the excellent supper had not been sufficient to counteract the effect of the innumerable cocktails he had consumed.

"Dee's mad at me," he said, his voice a little thick, his charming smile a little silly. "Why do women always get mad at you when you're having a good time? You wouldn't, would you, Carol? Listen to the music. It's been—beautiful, isn't it? Makes me sad. You know. I always get philo . . . serious when I hear music like that."

Carol glanced about the large living room where perhaps twenty couples were dancing. She looked vainly for Ian or Scott. John's murmurings bored and wearied her; and Dee was a jealous girl.

"Carol, why did Bill do it? He was crazy. You're . . . you're wonderful, honey. I always thought you were wonderful That—that Evelyn, beautiful but dumb. Dumb as hell. Carol, I could."

Without warning he stopped still and swayed. To steady him, Carol placed both her hands on his shoulders firmly. "Johnny, let's sit down."

But Dee, dancing by, did not hear her. With the pain in her eyes deeper and more burning, she was aware only of Johnny and Carol embracing.

She stopped and raised her voice until it was almost a scream. "Just because you haven't a husband, do you think you can have mine—or somebody else's husband?"

For Carol the music stopped. The whole world seemed to stand still. The twenty couples ceased dancing and Johnny was startled into soberness.

He said, "My God, Dee!"

Suddenly Scott was at Carol's side. She never knew whence he came. But he was there, saying in his deep voice, "Let's go, Carol," it seemed as though he were leading her through the embarrassed, pitying faces. She did not glance back at the husband and wife angrily facing each other. In the hall someone gave Carol her coat, and Lillian and Browne and Freda and Ian were saying something, and the next moment she was sitting in Scott's little car, her face white and tearless.

Scott said, "We'll take a drive. I'm not going to take you home. Dee had been drinking too much. Trying to keep up with Johnny. I'm sorry, Carol."

Her mouth curved into a mirthless smile. "I'm a menace, Scott. I'm not to be trusted any more because I am divorced. It isn't my group any more. I don't belong."

"That's nonsense."

"No, it isn't. It's true. Not the merry widow, they think, but the merry divorcee. There was nothing mysterious about me when I was Bill's wife. I was one of them."

The cool air rushing against her face felt good. "There is so much more to it than Reno, Scott. Perhaps they can't help it. It's like a leopard changing his spots. You wouldn't feel the same about a leopard who hadn't any spots. You can't feel the same about a woman who no longer has a husband. Evelyn has done nothing to me since she married Bill. But the divorce has. The divorce is my enemy, not Evelyn."

"The divorce hasn't changed anything for me—with you."

"You've been awfully sweet to me and I'll never forget it. I don't think you pity me, Scott. That helps."

Should he say, "I don't; I'm glad about the divorce; it gave me a chance?" No, not now. Not yet. It was a little too soon, too sudden. But tonight had made it easier for him.

He said, "I've always liked to be with you. We're—we're old friends." Turning his head, he smiled at her. "You look all in. Put your head against my shoulder." He put his arm around her and drew her close. Her nearness stirred him. "It's much too beautiful a night for people to go around hurting each other. I can't dope it out."

"The behavior of human beings, you mean?"

He nodded. "Yes, including me. I think I have a person all doped out and then the next thing I'm not sure. People aren't mathematical rules. It's kind of crazy, isn't it? I'm not making much sense."

"You don't have to." His shoulder was hard and broad. A safe shoulder, a kind and friendly one. "Suppose you take me home, now, Scott," she said. "I'm all right."

ARMY HELPS TO SAVE COAL STOCK

ATLANTA—(INS)—As a move to co-operate in the eastern fuel shortage situation, coal shipments to army posts and camps in the seven southeastern states have been curtailed to a point not to exceed consumption, the quartermaster branch, Fourth Service command, revealed.

The announcement said the curtailed shipments were in step with the general policy adopted in other service commands to make the available coal supply go as far as possible.

2—Card of Thanks

WE WISH to express our thanks and appreciation to the many friends and neighbors and to all who sent floral tributes in the death of our beloved husband and father, Felix Ciesla. We wish especially to thank Msgr. Goebel for his consoling words. And the Geiger Funeral Home for their kindness and efficient services.
MRS. FELIX CEISLA AND SONS. (C-k)

WE WISH to express our sincere and heartfelt thanks to relatives, friends and neighbors for their kindness and sympathy shown us during the illness and death of our dear wife and mother, Nellie May Keever. Especially Rev. C. B. A. Stacy for his wonderful service. E. Dean Byerly for his personal and kind attention to the funeral details and many thanks for the number of floral offerings from dear friends. All have our everlasting gratitude.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE—Time's Awastin'. By Harold Gray

TH' DIRTY FIEND! FIXIN' TO TORTURE POOR MR. MITT--TH' REAL MR. MITT--TO MAKE HIM TELL WHAT HE KNOWS 'BOUT THOSE FOUR GUARDS WE GOT--
WHERE YUH GOIN', ANNIE? FOR TH' POLICE? IT'S SHORTER OUT THROUGH TH' TUNNEL-
NIX! THAT'D ONLY GET ALL THOSE POOR PEOPLE KILLED--AND SALTS AND HIS GANG WOULD ESCAPE-
THE PHONY MITT IS A SUCKER FOR SPOOKS-SPIRITUALISM--GHOSTS! I SAW HIM READIN' A STACK O' BOOKS ON THAT STUFF--HE'S IN TH' LIBRARY NOW-HOW DO YOU KNOW THERE AREN'T GHOSTS?
I DON'T--ME, I'VE GOT NO 'PINIONS ON TH' SUBJECT--BUT OLD WHISKERS HAS-SH-H-H--RIGHT HERE IT IS--TAKE A PEEP, MILDRED-
OH-H-H--WHY, I CAN SEE RIGHT IN TO TH' LIBRARY--AN' THERE'S OLD WHISKERS, READIN'--

BLONDIE—It's the Principle of the Thing! By Chic Young

I'LL FLIP A QUARTER TO SEE IF I SHAVE OR NOT THIS MORNING
OH, GOLLY! IT FELL DOWN THE DRAIN PIPE
NOW, DON'T TEAR THE WHOLE BATHROOM APART, DEAR, JUST TO GET THAT QUARTER!
WELL, ANYWAY, IT'S TAILS! I DON'T HAVE TO SHAVE!

LIE THE TOILER— Time Gladly Lost. —By Westover

YOU SIMPLY CAN'T HAVE A PASS THIS TIME OF THE WEEK. IT'S AGAINST REGULATIONS. SURELY YOU UNDERSTAND THAT
YES, MA'AM
I CAN'T GET A PASS TODAY, CORPORAL
DON'T WORRY. I'LL BRING BILL AND MEET YOU DOWN TOWN TOMORROW NIGHT S'LONG

THE NEBBS—Saved and Shaved! By Sol Hess

YOU DIDN'T REALLY FIND THAT SUBSTANCE IN NORTHVILLE, DID YOU?
I CERTAINLY DID!
WHEREABOUTS IN NORTHVILLE?
I'LL TELL YOU IF YOU'LL SHAVE THESE HORRIBLE WHISKERS OFF MY FACE
HE'S YOUR CUSTOMER, RUDY.. GET BUSY!
I FOUND THAT DEPOSIT ALONG A LITTLE BROOK FLOWING BETWEEN ROCKS NEAR THE BIG HOTEL
I BELIEVE YOU, BUT I JUST CAN'T UNDERSTAND IT
YOU MEAN TO SAY WE CAME ALL THE WAY TO SOUTH AMERICA FOR NOTHING?
FATE DECREED THAT YOU SAVE MY LIFE--YOU CALL THAT NOTHING?

Without Painful Backache

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

STOCK MARKET SLANTS LOWER IRREGULARLY

Bank Clearings Drop From Preceding Week But Keep Above 1942.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The direction remained irregularly lower in today's early stock market proceedings.

At a quiet opening fractional declines were registered for U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, American Telephone, Southern Railway, U. S. Rubber and Anaconda. Minor gains were shown for Chrysler, United Aircraft and Standard Oil (N. J.).

Market analysts scanned the Dun & Bradstreet compilaton disclosing bank clearings in 23 cities for the week ended Wednesday, while substantially below the preceding week's big aggregate, exceeded the figure of the comparable 1942 period by 19.1 per cent.

THEATERS

Continues at Ohio.

Spencer Tracy and Katharine Hepburn co-star in "Keeper of the Flame," currently showing at the Ohio. Tracy, a well known foreign correspondent, learns of the accidental death of Miss Hepburn's husband. He visits the Forrest estate and falls in love with Miss Hepburn on sight. He isn't sure that Forrest's death was accidental, and he unwinds a mystery which reveals that the dead man was actually a Fascist sympathizer. He knows this would be the greatest story of his career, but he tries to keep the shocking news from the public because of his feeling for Mrs. Forrest.

MANSFIELD NEWS IN BRIEF

Gas Book AWOL—Arthur Green, Cleveland, reported to police last night that his gasoline ration book had been stolen from his auto while it was parked in Mansfield or Wooster.

Cramer Speaks—Optimist club members heard Probate Judge Stuart H. Cramer speak on "Juvenile Delinquency in Wartime," at their meeting at the Mansfield-Leland hotel yesterday noon.

Tax Stamp Missing—Mrs. Russell Snyder, Mansfield, R. D. 1, reported to Police Desk Sergeant Claude Watts yesterday that a federal use tax stamp has been lost or stolen from her auto.

Parents of Son — Mr. and Mrs. Paul Zimmerman, former Mansfield residents are parents of a son, born Tuesday in the Good Samaritan hospital in Ashland. Mrs. Zimmerman was the former Mary Davis.

Two Fined — Two motorists were fined in Ashland police court on charges of speeding on U. S. Route 42-N yesterday, state patrolmen reported. Mildred A. Guthrie, Shiloh, paid $15 and costs, and Oscar T. Olson, Shaker Heights, paid $10 and costs.

Bellville Dim-Out — Following the lead of Mansfield, Bellville will have a dim-out between 9 and 9:30 p. m. Friday, according to an announcement today by Mayor James R. Zeigler. Sirens will sound the beginning and end of the dim-out.

Scouts Meet — Scout troop 16 will meet at the American Legion today at 7:30 p. m. with Scoutmaster F. E. Elder in charge. Meeting of troop 9 is scheduled for 7:30 p. m. at Bowman school with Ray Kline, assistant scoutmaster, presiding.

Held As Deserter—LeRoy H. Ish, 435 Tremont street, was taken into custody last night by Detective Oscar Krupp and Plainsclothesman at the request of army authorities at Fort Dix, N. J., who charged Ish with being a deserter from army service.

Two Fire Calls—Central station firemen reported no damage from a rubbish fire yesterday evening in the rear of 62 Sturges avenue, presumably caused by children playing with matches. Slight damage was caused when an overheated stove set fire to a switch shanty in the Pennsylvania railroad yards near North Main street.

Returns From Funeral — Mrs. L. M. Daugherty, 101 Helen avenue, has returned from Greenville, Pa., where she was called because of the death of her father, Thomas F. Makepeace, 69. Mr. Makepeace died Feb. 27 at his home there, and funeral services were conducted in Greenville on March 2. Burial was at Mercer, Pa., He frequently visited in Mansfield.

Father Dies — J. G. Blahnik, 459 Marion avenue, was called to Menominee, Mich., yesterday by the death of his father, J. G. Blahnik, sr., 76. He had been ill for about two years. Besides his son here, who is manager of the Montgomery Ward store, his wife, five daughters and another son survive. Funeral services are set for Friday.

Installs Phone — A telephone has been installed at the Mansfield Garden center at the Public library to enable persons with garden lots to rent and others seeking gardens to register without going to the library, said Mrs. George Holland, president of the Garden center committee. The Garden center office will serve as a "clearing house" for Victory gardnerers and lot owners. The phone number is 1394-6.

MOTHER FINDS INFANT DEAD

Carl Eugene, four-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter W. Reber, Walker road in Wooster Heights, was found dead in bed this morning by his mother.

The child had been slightly ill yesterday, Mrs. Reber told Acting Coroner Blake Kohler and Deputy Sheriff Glenn Freeman who said death evidently was due to natural causes.

Two brothers, Lauren and Frederick, at home, and the grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Truex, Mansfield R. D. 1, and Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Reber, Ashland, survive with the parents.

The body was removed to the Geiger funeral home where services will be conducted at 2 p. m. Saturday. Burial will be in the Mansfield Catholic cemetery.

YANKS IMPRESS ENGLAND WITH GOOD MANNERS

Britons Like Their Way of Spreading Democratic Spirit Abroad.

By GEORGE GORMAN

LONDON—(NNS)—American soldiers in Britain are sowing the seeds of a tremendous social evolution in England. They are doing it unconsciously, by example.

The change they are bringing about over here is due to the possession by the average American uniformed man of these crisp qualities:

Better average physique than his British pal of the rank and file;

Easier bearing in any company; this means marked absence of any inferiority complex;

Evidence of better all-round education—all Americans seem like college men.

Now the English want to emulate the Americans.

Observant Englishmen tell me that American troops will stimulate the breakdown of class-consciousness. More powerfully than any other factor because they are living people, they will act to level Britain's social crusts. Fears held by some of the British Old Guard that greater familiarity between officers and men would weaken discipline are abolished by the comradely discipline of all American ranks.

At heart the British working men, who form the bulk of the army, are strong on the point of "I'm as good as anyone." But centuries of class distinction in education has resulted in outward appearance of servility.

The American soldier mingling with British people while on leave show no obsequiesness. London and other big cities notice that among Americans there is a marked absence of "sirring" everybody. With vast numbers of British wage-earners the "sir" punctuates nearly every sentence addressed to someone "higher up." Americans show that they can be respectful without overmuch bowing and scraping.

English girls are doing their bit in the American-style dress reform by giving pointed advice to brothers and sweethearts.

Nothing impresses the younger generation of English men and women more, one observer told me, than the cultured poise of the huge majority of American soldiers, regardless of rank.

"They all talk as if they'd read all the books and knew world affairs and scientific matters," he said. "I think there must be a very much higher educational plane for all people alike in the United States."

Americans here, seeing the natural politeness of our troops, are full of praise.

"They're all Chesterfields for manners," said one commentator, and he went on: "It isn't just put on. The boys are evidently well brought up. To see their address to women and to elder people is most impressive. I'd been led to believe by some people that Americans were rough and over-bearing. Your troops have settled that question for our generation."

The eager, youthful, good-tempered soldiers, sailors and airmen of Uncle Sam are the best missionaries America ever has sent abroad. They're changing the outlook of peoples wherever they go.

CAN'T GET SHOES FOR HIS MODELS

M'PHERSON, Kans. —(AP)— A McPherson merchant has a corps of wax models for his display windows. He doesn't deal in shoes. Before shoe rationing, he borrowed shoes from a shoe merchant. Now he's tried to buy shoes but couldn't get any No. 17 coupons for wax blondes.

He's appealed the case but meanwhile, says he, it's an outrage that his mannequins have to stand around in their bare tootsies.

BREAD DOUGH ON RAMPAGE

SAN DIEGO, Cal—(U.P.)—Thousands of pounds of dough in a giant mixer at a local bakery went on a rampage and showed just what dough can do. The dough was just ready to be mixed when a storm cut off the electrical current to the mixture.

With the bakers standing by unable to do anything about it, the dough began to "rise" of its own inherent rising power. It rose and rose, until finally it rose entirely out of the mixer, pushed against a big window and eventually landed on the sidewalk below, carrying with it the mixer, broken glass, window and part of the wall.

FALSE TEETH

That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Holds false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug store.

REDS ADVANCE ON SMOLENSK, CIRCLE VYAZMA

Germans Hurl Heavy Force Into Indecisive Battle on Kharkov Front.

Some 130 miles to the northwest, Fighting French troops stormed and captured the mining center of Metaoui, 25 miles southwest of Gafsa, an Algiers broadcast said.

Dispatches indicated the French in this sector were cleaning out the Nazis in the region just above the bleak Chott Djerid salt lake, paving the way for a drive to the Gulf of Gabes behind the Mareth line.

In the north, Lieut.-Gen. K. A. N. Anderson's British 1st army was reported continuing its patrol activity in the Sedjanane sector, 35 miles west of Axis-held Bizerte naval base, where the Germans have been attempting to widen their narrow defense corridor.

A communique from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters said Allied troops repulsed an Axis attack yesterday west of Sedjenane, while the German command reported "fighting of local importance only" on the 350-mile-long front.

"In central Tunisia, patrolling continued and there was some activity," the Allied communique said.

Allied military observers said the Axis was on the down grade in Tunisia, following a series of costly offensive jabs, and declared that with the royal navy controlling the sea and Allied planes clearly superior in the skies, Rommel and his estimated 250,000 troops had little chance of a "Dunkerque escape" from the North African trap.

Yank Casualties In Tunisia Hit 2,242

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— American casualties in Tunisia from Feb. 14 to 20—the period of the Allied retreat and initial counter-attack—totalled 2,242, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson disclosed today.

These included 59 killed, 176 wounded and 2,007 missing, Stimson said. Of the missing most probably were taken prisoner by the enemy.

Stimson said in this period American losses ran heavier than those of the British and French.

"Losses on both sides in Tunisia during the past month have been substantial," he said. "We probably have fared better than the enemy. More than 1,000 Germans and Italians were taken prisoner during the month, and over 100 enemy tanks captured and destroyed.

Allied forces in Tunisia have had much the better of the fighting during the past week. Highly mobile Axis forces have been extremely active but the net result has been decidedly unfavorable to the Axis."

Nazis Claim 13 Allied Ships Sunk

(By Associated Press)

A special German communique broadcast by the Berlin radio and recorded by the Associated Press declared today 13 heavily loaded Allied ships totaling 73,000 tons had been sunk by U-boats from a convoy en route from North Africa to Britain, increasing to 36 the number of vessels announced in the last 24 hours as destroyed.

There was no Allied confirmation.

The communique said three other ships were damaged.

The Italian high command said in a communique broadcast from Rome the Italian air force had sunk 1,000,000 tons of Allied shipping since the war began, reaching this total by sinking a 15,000-ton vessel yesterday from a convoy off the Algerian coast. There was no confirmation from Allied quarters.

Report Laval To Close Universities

(By Associated Press)

The fighting French radio at Brazzaville said today Pierre Laval, chief of government in the Vichy regime, was considering closing down all French universities so students could be sent to Germany to work in Nazi war industries.

The broadcast was recorded by U. S. government monitors and released by the office of war information.

Widespread disorders have been reported in France in recent days as a result of protests against attempts to round up the 400,000 workers Laval is said to have promised Germany.

The Berlin radio, in a broadcast recorded last night by the Associated Press in London, took occasion to deny foreign reports about the disorders in France, saying they were "maliciously issued by countries hostile to the Axis."

Dozen Fires Mark Sharp French Unrest

LONDON —(INS)— Twelve fires were reported to have broken out in southwestern France today as the subjugated nation seethed with unrest under new impositions by Nazi occupation forces.

The German-controlled Vichy radio said that the 12 fires broke out this morning in the vicinity of Cahors, southwestern France.

One blaze started in the welfare department of the Cahors town hall while another flared in an airplane hangar where local services to care for refugees had been installed.

New evidence appeared meanwhile of the extreme concern of the Nazis over the consequences of the continuing unrest of the French populace, including the possibility of an early Allied invasion. Reports from the continent said that the Germans had doubled precautions against Allied landing attempts.

Moscow Papers Quote Adm. Standley

MOSCOW— (U.P.)— All Moscow newspapers today published dispatches from New York quoting the remarks of Admiral William H. Standley, U. S. ambassador to Moscow, on the failure of the Soviet press to publicize American contributions to Russia.

The press conference in Moscow at which Standley made his comments on Monday was solely for American and British correspondents.

The New York dispatches also included the full text of U. S. Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles' statement that Standley was not acting under instructions from the U. S. government in criticizing the Soviet.

health commissioner, was authorized to apply the quarantine as a means of preventing a warm weather recurrence of the rabies epidemic which threatened to be a scourge to Mansfield and to county areas last fall.

"Veterinaries report a splendid response to the inoculation program," Dr. Wild said, "and their fee is very nominal in comparison to the satisfaction reaped by the owner of a canine pet or servant. Each vaccinated dog can be released from quarantine 15 days after treatment but must wear the tag which is supplied along with the vaccine."

Cost of Pasteur treatments for persons bitten by infected or suspected dogs reverts entirely on the taxpayers, Dr. Wild said, attending physicians presenting their accounts to the county commissioners. Police Chief Meade K. Bates has instructed patrolmen to direct owners to comply with the quarantine or face arrest before seizure of any untagged animal.

Service Director Fred B. Wolff and City Engineer W. C. Statler are conferring on what method of collection will be used and when the "gather" will be made. Several ways in which householders might be asked to co-operate are under consideration," they said.

In January, it was indicated that council likely would be asked to appropriate around $1,400 for a salvage truck purchase but the issue was passed over at the February meeting and was not presented at last week's regular March session. With a lessening of street department work caused by war conditions Hebel said that the reconstructed truck will be the solution of the collection problem.

partment personnel, has participated in cruises of each of the three sectors already dimmed out.

Factories in the tested area last night were barely discernable, air raid wardens, auxiliary policemen and other observers reported. All business houses in the area complied properly with dim-out regulations.

Tonight's test will be in the area north of the middle of Park avenue east and east of the center of North Main street, including virtually half of the city's principal commercial district and a major portion of Mansfield's extensive war plant domain. Squads of auxiliarymen, wardens, and city police will be on foot and cruiser patrol when the warning signal sounds at 9 p. m. and followed by a routine air raid alert within a few minutes, the all-clear signal coming at 9:20 o'clock.

On next Thursday night a city-wide dim-out will be conducted in preparation for a war department-state defense council black-out test late this month in a 20-county area including Mansfield and Richland county.

War industries which will have demonstrated their ability to comply with black-out requirements in private individual tests will be excused from this demonstration, Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, defense coordinator, has been advised.

OFFERS PLAN TO HELP FARMERS

J. A. C. Would Set Up 'Clearing House' For Volunteers To Work on Farms.

to teach them what to do. He admitted later, however, that the plan had possibilities.

Howard Stone, county AAA committeeman who presided during the forum in the absence of Chairman Guy L. Taylor, said he believed the idea was a good one and would afford needed help for farmers in rush seasons.

With Fackler and his brother, A. C. Fackler of Sharon township, leading the opposition to the AAA, controversial questions were directed at Durree without giving him a chance to answer them.

Durree said the government farm program which was 10 years old last Monday had performed a valuable service for farmers by keeping farm prices under control, instructing farmers in the planting of necessary food crops, and urging adoption of soil conservation practices.

He said the AAA gave farmers an organization which was comparable to labor unions—something with a voice that could be heard in Washington when the farmer wanted something.

Henry Fackler had different ideas about the government program, however, telling Durree that "if you will call off your dogs, we patriotic farmers will produce enough food without being told how to do it."

Fackler said the government couldn't pay farmers not to grow food in a democracy and that the wheat marketing penalties, which recently were ruled out by the secretary of agriculture "made it look like farmers were criminals because they produced and sold wheat."

Another AAA opponent recalled that the first colonies were established by people who came to America to enjoy the benefits of free trade and not to be told how to run their farms. "You must place confidence in people to get them to do something," he said.

In a discussion of the farm machinery problem, Durree said farmers had already requested purchase orders for more machinery this year than they would need in two years without rationing.

"It must be human nature," he said, "that makes us want things we can't have."

He predicted that more harvesting machinery would be released by July 1, but someone in the audience wagered that it wouldn't be available before next fall because of the "red tape" involved.

Durree said public opinion is now behind the farmer in the matter of providing a labor supply, and he predicted that draft boards will be more lenient with farm workers.

"The farm boy who stays at home and produces food is doing just as much as the boy at the front and he shouldn't be criticized for it," Durree added.

After listening to the discussion, Rev. Floyd Eckert of Weller township said he couldn't see why farm organizations didn't "get together to work out your problems instead of pulling apart." Quoting Benjamin Franklin, he said "We hang together, or we hang alone."

"When I was invited here tonight I wasn't quite sure of the purpose of the meeting, and I'm still not sure," Rev. Eckert said.

minimum of red tape to encourage the greatest possible amount of home canning."

Other recommendations and criticism:

America produced 8,000,800 deadweight tons of merchant shipping last year and anticipated tonnage this year is 18,000,000 tons. But production of merchant ships is not sufficient. The navy must build—and build fast—many escort vessels of simplified design to combat enemy submarines.

The army must streamline its aircraft specifications if it realizes maximum plane producton.

There must be a co-ordinated effort not only to allocate fairly the scarce materials in all war industry but to organize the production of these competing articles.

Absenteeism must be reduced and production per man must be increased.

Planning of government agencies must be more efficient in starting phases of various programs.

national fund.

5. Strengthening of the special public assistance programs to provide more adequately for those in need.

6. Adequate measures to ensure the security of those serving in the armed forces and their families.

In advocating "jobs for all" the planning board recommended establishment of a permanent "work administration" and immediate steps toward creation of a post-war back-log of public projects for construction under planned "six year programs."

In the vast field of converting America's war economy back to peace, the report warned that economic controls should not be removed immediately upon the cessation of hostilities.

Thumbnail Sketch of Post-War Proposals

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— A thumbnail outline of national resources planning board recommendations transmitted to congress:

Post-War Economy.

A guarantee of "fair pay" and good working conditions for every person able to work regardless of whether those seeking jobs can pass a means test.

Continued control on prices, wages and commodity rationing for as long as "two or three years" after the war.

Continuance of wartime taxes with emphasis on individual levies and lessening emphasis on corporate income taxes.

Creation of a national work administration to supervise the carrying out of a backlog of public works projects to help the unemployment situation resulting from postwar conversion of war plants to civilian purposes.

Creation of a national transportation agency to supervise operation of all carriers and including a plan for consolidation of the nation's railroads into a limited number of regional systems.

Government partnership in private industry, particularly the fields in which government made extensive wartime investments.

Interconnecting power systems.

A heavily expanded public housing program. Extensive programs for urban development after the war.

Orderly demobilization of manpower and industry after the war.

Social Security and Services.

Federal finance and equal access for all young people to elementary and high schools, and colleges, too, depending upon their ability.

Virtually complete socialization of medicine and health care.

Federal disability benefits and extension of social security to classifications now exempt.

Broadened unemployment compensation coverage.

New measures to ensure the security of those in the armed forces and their families.

ICC BANS ERIE BOND SELLING

Turn Down $14,000,000 Issue After Hearing.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— The interstate commerce commission today refused to permit the Erie railroad to issue $14,000,000 in new 3½ per cent bonds which the road had already sold privately to Morgan Stanley and company, New York, subject to ICC approval.

Erie sold the bonds to Morgan Stanley at 96. H. L. Stuart, of Halsey, Stuart and company, testified at the hearing on the application that if his firm had been permitted to bid for the issue, he and Otis and company together would have paid 99 for the bonds.

Erie planned to sell the bonds to obtain funds to pay a $14,000,000 four per cent collateral trust note held by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Berlin, are "intolerably overcrowded."

Direct damage to steel works in the Ruhr valley, he said, has caused a loss of 1,250,000 tons of German steel.

"During February," Sinclair continued, "the R. A. F. delivered more than 10,000 tons of bombs to Germany, including three raids in which 1,000 tons each were dropped.

"In the first ten days of March, over 4,000 tons have been delivered.

"Photographs of the March 5 raid upon Essen (site of the Krupp armament works) prove it was probably the heaviest blow struck against the German war industry. The whole bomber offensive and its disastrous devastation is only comparable with the 1,000 plane raid on Cologne.

"We shall spare no exertions to ensure development of our tactics and equipment will continue to outstrip improvements in German defenses."

Of more than 2,500 bombers escorted by fighters sent from England over Germany and occupied countries less than 50 have been lost, Sinclair said, thus compelling the enemy to keep his finest fighters and pilots in western Europe all through the hard battles in Russia and Africa.

"The German army," he said, "is clamoring for air support. Yet little more than one-quarter of the German fighter force is strung out from the White to the Black sea, while nearly double that number is kept in western Europe."

"The locomotive shortage in Germany and the occupied countries is acute as a result of locomotive-busting by the R. A. F. Our bombs have improved and will continue to improve. This is no time for relaxing in any direction. The fighting strength and exertions of the R. A. F. have increased, are increasing and in the next year will mount."

daug sector 25 miles north of Akyab.

No reports were forthcoming on ground fighting either in Burma or New Guinea.

On the China front, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's armies fighting to defend China's "back door" along the Yunnan-Burma frontier were reported to have blunted the northern claw of a pincer which the Japanese had thrown across the Yunnan border from their base at Myitkyina, Burma.

A Chinese army spokesman said the Japanese were using 55,000 troops in the border region, but declared the Chinese had captured point after point.

Chinese military quarters said the Japanese were establishing powerful air bases in the Kwangchowan island, off the China coast between Hongkong and Hainan, for operations against any airdrome constructed by the Allies in South or East China for raids against Japan.

70,000 Japs Attack On Hupeh Front

CHUNGKING—(U.P.)—About 70,000 Japanese troops, supported by planes and artillery, are attacking Chinese positions on the south bank of the Yangtse river, in southern Hupeh province, a Chinese military spokesman said today.

The central part of the Japanese assault columns, approximately 20,000 men, has pushed across the Yangtse and is advancing inland.

The Japanese offensive is aimed at safe-guarding shipping along the Yangtse, the spokesman said, or perhaps is a move to cover the Japanese flank along Tungting lake in case the Japanese open a new offensive against Changsha.

The Japanese have shipped large quantities of heavy bombs and aviation supplies, as well as some planes, to their newly conquered territory around Kuangchow bay, approximately 250 miles west of Hongkong, where they are preparing defensive bases as well as air bases.

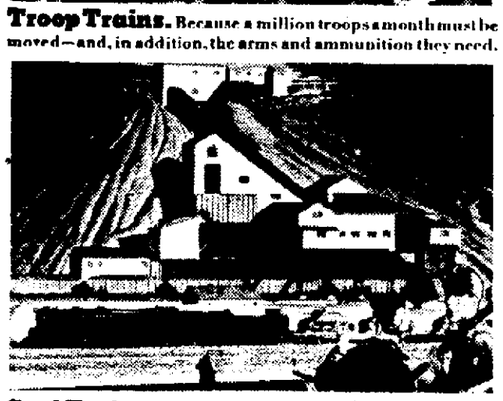
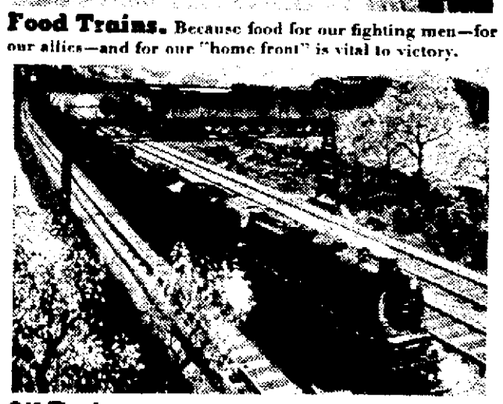
Trains that get the "breaks"

Troop Trains. Because a million troops a month must be moved—and, in addition, the arms and ammunition they need.

Food Trains. Because food for our fighting men—for our allies—and for our "home front" is vital to victory.



Coal Trains. Because coal is the nation's greatest single source of heat, light, power—we can't win the war without it.



Oil Trains. Because they must replace tankers, to serve homes, cars, factories—and to quicken overseas oil shipments.

Once great passenger trains had the right-of-way.

And they will again!

But right now there is a war to be won. So trains vital to the war effort get priority.

And we don't think there is a single American who would have it otherwise.

In fact, evidence of that grows daily. If their train is late, business men take it as something that can't be helped. They know why.

And so with any travel inconvenience that may be encountered. Demand for equipment is now so great that on arriving at terminals cars must be put right back into service, so you may find them not quite so spic and span as we would like. Housekeeping facilities are adequate but there's not always time.

But Americans are taking all this like good soldiers. For they know this is a war of movement, and that movement begins right here—in America.

Loose Talking In High Places

EXTENSION, rather than relaxation of censorship over intended utterances of men in high places in government, may seem advisable as the potentialities of Ambassador Standley's sharp criticism of Russian war policies are pondered.

Admiral Standley's charge that the people of Russia have been left uninformed of the extent of United Nations aid, and are being led to believe that they are fighting the war alone, came at a crucial time in connection with congressional action to extend the lend-lease program, and went so far as to warn that "under the circumstances congress might balk at further lend-lease aid."

Standley's statement also came close on the heels of a speech which Vice President Wallace delivered in Delaware last Monday in which he visioned conditions which would "probably" bring on a third world war—one of his probabilities being, "in case we double-cross Russia."

Mr. Wallace, whom President Roosevelt virtually "appointed" to the vice presidency, may be assumed to have been echoing a Roosevelt view when he said in the same speech, "Without a close and trusting understanding between Russia and the United States, there is grave probability of Russia and Germany sooner or later making common cause." By what authority does the vice president intimate that there is even remote thought in America of "double-crossing" Russia?

First reaction of the state department to the Standley reprimand of Russian methods was one of annoyance, coupled with assurance by Undersecretary Sumner Welles that "whatever remarks were made by the ambassador were made without prior consultation with, or reference to the government."

Second thought, however, seemed to make it inadvisable to thus "leave out on a limb" the president's personal choice to the important post of ambassador to Russia, and a later interpretation suggested possibility that this was no more than "shrewd maneuvering" by the administration to reach a public understanding of Russia's plans for post-war peace.

Except in joining with Great Britain and the United States in agreeing not to make a separate peace with Germany, Premier Stalin has been characteristically reticent about Russia's plans for carrying on the war and has also failed to state the post-war intentions of that country or to concur in any of the multitude of "plans" being evolved by visionary designers of almost immediate transition into a perfect world when this war is ended.

Stalin is a realist, not an idealist. He recognizes that the task of the moment is to drive Nazi invaders out of Russia—and that job is still far from complete. He was too much engaged with problems at home to attend the Casablanca conference in North Africa and may even now be too busy fighting the war to take time to courteously express gratitude for the substantial aid Russia has been given in driving back the invading Nazi hordes and draining enemy fighting strength that would otherwise have been available to throw against Great Britain and the United States.

There's a hint that some senators may balk against continuing lend-lease aid to Russia until they are given "more light on what Russia intends to do in the immediate future and in the post-war world."

That would be unfortunate—possibly disastrous. All that can consistently be asked of Russia right now is that it continue to fight as magnificently as it has been doing—and in its own way—with assurance from the United States and other United Nations that all possible help will be given in war equipment and other supplies.

Early Worries About Fruit Crop

MASSACHUSETTS gets in early with the word that its peach crop has been badly hurt by the recent cold weather. And, indeed, this time the trees themselves have been seriously damaged—branches and in some cases whole trees have been split. Apple trees also have met injury, but the agriculture commissioner says it is too early to forecast the extent of apple damage.

In the great lakes fruit regions, it is accepted by most readers merely as a regular sign of spring to hear that the peach crop has been ruined by late frost.

But sometimes it really does happen. This would be a bad year for any crop to be damaged beyond hope of recovery. And peaches in their various forms—sliced with cream, peach cobbler, peach pie, peach ice cream in the summer, pickled peaches for autumn festivals, and the like, are great American joys. Everyone will hope that the first alarms from northern scenes are at least slightly exaggerated. Georgia and her neighbors do nobly but cannot do it all.

Old Tires Still Have Job To Do

REMOVAL of restrictions on re-capping tires, coupled with an encouraging hint from William Jeffers that more tires for civilian use are likely to be available by the middle of next year, gives further emphasis to the importance of making present tires bridge over until others can be bought.

People are sometimes inclined to become too optimistic—or to fatalistic—about conditions over which they seem to have no control, and this has been shown in the matter of tires. Some persons have sold their cars, or put them up for "the duration," while others have continued to drive to the limit of restricted gasoline supply and without reduction in customary speed.

A sensible course, in the present situation, seems to be that of doing necessary driving at moderate speed and keeping tires and car in good condition—so as to make this form of transportation available as long as possible.

Reflecting on the plethora of speeches, Grove Patterson (who makes some himself) decides that "the country could do with some more laryngitis."

An idea of some of the post-war dreamers seems to be to make happiness available to everybody without need of "pursuit."

HE JUST KEEPS ROLLING ALONG

Soviet Union's Role After War Is Subject of Anxious Queries

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

ADMIRAL WILLIAM H. STANDLEY, our ambassador to Russia, seems to have broached a keg of strong liquor when he stated in Moscow that he didn't think the Russian people were being told the complete story of American aid to their country, and that "there's no question about the Soviets trying to create the impression abroad, as well as at home, that they are fighting the war alone."

This acquired an added potency, which set some eyes in Washington to watering, because it was almost coincident with Vice President Wallace's declaration that "unless the western democracies and Russia come to a satisfactory understanding before the war ends, I very much fear that world war No. 3 will be inevitable."

That impels me to record here some facts noted during my recent trip abroad. I found that one of the anxious queries in the minds of a host of people, from Britain right through to Chungking, is just what role the Soviet Union is likely to play after the war.

In other words, they're wondering whether the United Nations will remain united, or whether circumstances will decree that mighty Russia shall operate as a lone-wolf.

It struck me as involving one of the most important issues to be solved by the Allies, but I haven't ventured to report it before because it seemed rather delicate for public discussion.

WHAT I found wasn't so much a definite suspicion that things were likely to go wrong, as real fear that they might. On only one point was certainly expressed. This was that Russia seemed bound to emerge from the war as the dominant power of Europe and most likely of Asia as well.

Out of that grew the question of how far Allied unity would be able to adapt itself to this new situation. What would be the attitude of John Bull, erstwhile policeman of Europe, and Uncle Sam and all the rest? What would be the attitude of Russia herself, with all this power in her hands?

It's easy to draw this picture of Russia out of the materials at hand. Germany, which before the war had almost complete politico-economic control of central and eastern Europe and the Balkans, is on her way out.

Who should take her place but the adjacent Soviet Union, which has astounded the world by its industrial and military development during the past 15 years? Geography hasn't given the other Allies any such favorable position as regards the continent.

The belief is widespread in the capitals I visited that the Muscovites will dominate Europe westward at least through Germany, and maybe to the English channel. I'm speaking now of political and economic domination.

The whole Russian set-up encourages such speculation. This huge empire, which occupies one-sixth of the earth's area and has a population of 193,000,000, is pretty well self-contained. It could wage a defensive war indefinitely on its own resources. Geographically it is well-nigh impregnable.

Russia is a giant even to a vast country like China. What shall we get for that post-war picture that Vice President Wallace is concerned about? What happens if the United Nations become the disunited nations?

Farmer's Diary

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

UNDERGROUND TILLAGE

"WE-ALL knew when he moved into our community that he was a queer sort," the old farmer told me. "Hen had that name, wherever he's lived, and such things get around. So when he come and bought the poorest ol' rundown farm anywhere near us, we sorto' set back to watch what he'd do first

"We cultivate our corn in straight rows. He up and makes his'n crooked, just the way the hill goes. We have our fields in rectangles with nice square corners. He goes and builds his fences crooked, like the hill go's. I'll admit he never has any short rows 'cause his fences run the same way as his furrows.

"He took the mould-board off his plow the first year, and had a blacksmith weld a V out of two flat steel pieces like the winged sides of a one row potato digger. Ever see one? That V was three-foot wide, and it sliced along underneath the ground without hardly raisin' a ripple. Then he bought an old disk and hitched his four big horses to it and covered that field two different directions. All the stubble and trash was still right on top and he planted his corn right in it and somehow it come up greener'n ours, although we'd been of the opinion that 'twouldn't grow, no ways.

"It didn't rain much that year—only two or three good growin' rains the whole summer. And Hen had a good crop of corn while ours was withered fodder. And after that we watched him more'n ever.

"He plowed his oats stubble for wheat the same way, and darn if he didn't get more wheat than any of us. He planted soybeans a time or two and when they were right for hay plowed 'em under deep and put that in wheat, too.

"For the last six years Hen's farm has produced almost twice as much per acre, every year, wet or dry, as our fields did. So at the community meeting a group of us got Hen cornered and asked him a lot of questions.

"Hen said he'd worked in the woods a lot, and he'd allus noticed that underneath the leaves and trash the woods dirt kept moist and loose, even in the driest weather. So he figured out that if he'd leave the stubble and trash on top of his field, it'd stop the water and keep the ground from packin' or washin' either. The layer of stubble on top acts like a blotter, he says, to keep the moisture in. It took him quite a while to figure out how to plant corn through the stubble, but when he'd done it, it worked, at least for him. So now we've elected Hen president of our community club, and we're all goin' to have a whack at farmin' like he does."

Spirit of the Alamo.

There's a story current about three sailors being interviewed on the radio about their reasons for joining the navy. One wanted to learn radio; another liked the idea of seeing the world. The boy from Texas said: "I joined the navy 'cause I want to fight."

The Lone Star state is backing up that sailor and all other fighting Americans with a no-strike agreement, signed by Gov. Coke Stevenson and representatives of labor. Strikes, stoppages, lockouts—anything that hampers an all-out war effort is outlawed in Texas for the duration.

The state government, industry and labor agree that full and maximum capacity production shall be maintained, and the governor is empowered to take action to prevent interference with the war effort. The pact implements a similar oral agreement reached more than a year ago.

The Texans are serious about winning this war. The spirit of the Alamo is still alive.—Akron Beacon Journal.

Forthright he ever seems
And it is cosy to sit near
And share the smoke-wreathed dreams.

Sit silently, or if there is

Farmer Throws Monkeywrench Into Morgan-Erie Finance Deal

WASHINGTON—Railroad history is being made this week largely as the result of a battle by a Maryland farmer who exposed a deal between J. P. Morgan and the many-times financed Erie railroad to refinance it again without benefit of competitive bidding—and without benefit to the stockholders.

Back in Civil war days the Erie was the object of a historic financial battle, when Jay Gould and Daniel Drew stole its books, fled to New Jersey, and proceeded to issue paper stock beyond the reach of the stockholders. J. P. Morgan, the elder, and Commodore Vanderbilt fought them in this deal.

In World War II, the long bankrupt Erie, put through several receiverships, has been carrying record quantities of war goods and making money hand over fist. So Morgan, Stanley and Company (offshoot of J. P. Morgan) secretly negotiated the refinancing of $14,000,000 of Erie bonds held by the RFC.

This time the battle was between Morgan and midwest bankers who were not allowed to bid. But Morgan's chief opponent actually turned out to be Eugene Casey, who owns two farms near Washington which he calls "New Deal Farm No. 1" and "New Deal Farm No. 2," and who also happens to own some stock in the Erie Railroad.

Because of Casey's loyalty to FDR he is on the White House staff as farm adviser, but he fought the Erie deal as a private individual, and incidentally delivered before the Interstate Commerce Commission one of the most scathing speeches since Roosevelt's "banking speech" March 4, 1933.

"I hope," he told the I. C. C., "that you will not silently sit and permit the repudiated money changers of America subtly and in slinking fashion to ease back into the temples of American unorthodox finance . . .

"Only the bankers and brokers and directors can ever destroy capitalism in this country," Casey continued, "by methods such as this, in undermining the inherent faith of the American people in their financial and corporate institutions."

Casey claimed that instead of profiting by the deal, the Erie railroad actually would lose about $16,000, while the U. S. treasury would lose about a million dollars in taxes. He also contended that the deal had been put across by Frank J. Wright, a director of Erie, who was drawing money not only from Erie but also from the RFC at $30 a day as a railroad adviser.

As a result of Casey's expose it looks as if the Interstate Commerce Commission would reverse itself and take the bond deal away from Morgan. It also looks as if the ICC would make railroad history by requiring competitive bidding on all railroad financing from now on.

Why the Japs Know.

HERE is an excerpt from the interior department's annual 1941 report, which indicates why the Japs know so much about the Aleutian Islands:

"The floating plant Kosei Maru, with auxiliary craft consisting of nine trawlers, was engaged from May to August, 1940, in taking halibut and cod in Bering sea about 100 miles northeast of the Pribilof Islands, with one additional trawler during the last week or two of the season. The vessel was reported to have left for Japan toward the end of August.

"This is the eleventh consecutive year that Japanese floating plants have operated in these waters, the number of vessels having varied from one to four, with the usual complement of tenders."

Note: Under international law it is impossible to prevent foreign fishermen from fishing in foreign waters.

Friend or Enemy.

WAR department officials, in their off moments, are making a collection of the signs and countersigns used by men in the army to indicate to sentries the approach of a friendly patrol.

In the old 1940 days of the slow-moving defense program when stove pipes were used for guns, the word "stove" was commonly shouted by the sentry, and the word "pipe" was the proper countersign.

Another challenge, "seven" and "eleven," was abandoned during maneuvers, because the answer was too obvious. Officer candidate classes often use the date of graduation as a sign and countersign, such as "March" and "eleven," because the date when he will get his bars is indelibly stamped on the mind of each man.

Such words as "boogie" and "woogie" . . . "hep" and "cat" are used often because they are calculated to confuse even an English speaking enemy.

"Whisky" and "soda" used to be popular, but it was found too often that when a sentry yelled "Whisky," the other man answered "Where?"

Merry-Go-Round.

WAR TRANSPORT Czar Joe Eastman says he gets a bushel of letters and postcards every week suggesting that he bar Mrs. Roosevelt from travelling . . . Old Washington observers who have seen previous presidents suffer from getting out of touch with the nation, wish FDR had two Mrs. Roosevelts to keep him posted about U. S. sentiment. Any president who loses contact with the people is finished, and every president, especially in wartime, has to be engrossed on myriads of immediate, close-up problems. . . . Connecticut Congresswoman Clare Luce has another catchword up her sleeve. This time it will not be "globaloney" but "globalignment" . . . Gaunt, grey Bernie Baruch, receiving visitors on a park bench, got a call from Assistant Rubber Czar Dewey urging that Baruch head up committees to study food, crops, strategic materials, as he did for rubber . . . the house of representatives really listened when Minnesota's freshman congressman, Dr. Walter Judd, made his maiden speech on China. For years a medical missionary in China, Dr. Judd also had toured the U. S. A. for two years before Pearl Harbor urging an embargo on war materials to Japan.

ERNIE PYLE — Roving Reporter

Damaged Planes Repaired In a Jiffy; No Experts to Say "It Can't Be Done".

A FORWARD TUNISIAN AIRDROME — Everything around a fighter-bomber airdrome is important, but I know of nothing more important than the repair section.

It's vastly different from airplane shops or garages back home, where nothing more than a little inconvenience results from the long layup of a plane or car.

ERNIE PYLE

Out here there are just so many planes. With us and Germany teeter-tottering for air superiority over Africa, every single one is as precious as though it were made of gold. Every plane out of action is temporarily the same as a plane destroyed.

It is the job of the repair section to take the shot-up planes and get them back into the air a little faster than is humanly possible. And that is what they are doing.

At our desert airdrome this section is in charge of Major Charles E. Coverley, of Palo Alto, Calif. His nickname is "Erk," and he was one of my fellow-travelers from England.

His right arm is a quiet mechanical genius named Walter Goodwin, of Grove City, Pa.—a regular army sergeant, just promoted on the field to warrant officer. The men worship him and every officer on the field accepts his judgment on plane damage as final.

The repair section operates under a theory that seems outlandish after coming from the peace time business world. Its motto is to give away everything it can.

Instead of hoarding their supplies and yelling that they're snowed-under with work, they go around the field accepting every job imaginable, fulfilling every pilot's request, donating from their precious small stock of spare parts to any line mechanic that asks for something. For only by doing it that way do planes get back in the air a few hours sooner.

In the repair section are 250 master craftsmen. They are happy and sincere and proud. I've never seen greater willingness to work beyond all requirements than these men show.

LET me give you an example of how the section works. After a recent little to-do with the enemy, 14 of our planes were found to be damaged. Some needed only skin patches; others had washtub holes through the wings and were almost rebuilding jobs.

Maj. Coverley and the squadron engineers surveyed the situation all morning, driving in a jeep from one plane to another. I rode with them, and when noon came and not a plane had been moved over to the repair area, I thought to myself this is a mighty slow way to win a war. But I changed my mind a little later.

It takes that long to estimate all the damage, plan out your program, distribute your men and machines over the huge field, and get things rolling. But once rolling—

Two days later I checked on their progress. Five of those wrecked planes were ready for missions by that first evening. Three more were delivered the following day. On the third day four more were just about finished. That makes 12. The other two had been turned into salvage, for spare parts.

Under peacetime conditions at home, it would have taken perhaps two months even in the finest shops to get all those planes in the air. But here they were fighting again within three days. You can do the impossible when you have to.

THIS field operates with a dearth of spare parts, as probably do all our fields at the far ends of the earth. So the field provides its own spare parts by scrapping the most badly damaged planes, and using the good parts that are left.

This happens to about one of every 15 planes that are shot up. These condemned planes are towed to the engineering section, and there they gradually disappear. Finally they are skeletons—immobile, pathetic skeletons, picked bare by the scavenging mechanics.

YOU'D be touched by the sight of the repair shops here. All plane work is done right out doors. The only shops are tents where small machine work is done.

The tents are three-sided, with one end open. The floor is sand. When the wind blows the men have to wear goggles. Beside every tent, almost within one-jump distance, is a deep slit trench to dive into when the enemy bombers come.

Theirs is real war work, and you can't say they're much safer than the airmen themselves, for they are subject to frequent bombing.

They say their main hope is that no experts from the factories back home show up to look things over. The experts would tell them a broken wing can't be fixed this way, a shattered landing gear can't be fixed that way. But these birds know damn well it can be, for they're doing it.

You May Find The Answer Here.

—By DR. CLENDENING

E. S.:—I am thinking of putting some chicory in my coffee. Some people have told me not to do so, as it is harmful. Is this true and if so, in what way?

Answer: No, chicory does no harm organically, but it will be awfully bad for your disposition.

C. P.—Can anything be done to make a boy of 14 quit growing? He is six feet, two inches now and still growing.

Answer: I think he should have his pituitary gland examined by the x-ray and get the advice of an endocrine gland specialist.

J. D.:—Do alcoholic drinks have any effect on a person with a murmur of the heart?

Answer: They don't do him any good.

C. S.:—Is it possible for a person to be allergic to cats? It occurs to me that since we got our kitten I have had a persistent cold. Is this only imagination?

Answer: Certainly it is possible for people to be allergic to cats. In fact, one of the first descriptions of allergy is by Henry Hyde Salter, an English physician, who described his own case of asthma due to the proximity of the domestic cat. All his colleagues made fun of the idea, but time has proved that he was right.

A. D.:—What is the cause of a person's finding it difficult to take a long breath? Is this from the heart?

Answer: The feeling that you have not got your breath to the bottom of your lungs is due to nervousness. No heart disease is ever found in such patients.

WARNS HITLER MAY TRY USE OF POISON GAS

Former Envoy To Berlin Sees Fantastic Moves To Avoid Defeat.

By JOHN CASHMAN
(INS Staff Writer)

NEW YORK — Adolf Hitler, smashed back by the Russians, chased around in North Africa, with his capital threatened by the RAF and revolt lying at his very doorstep, will take any desperate chance in trying to avoid defeat, even the use of poison gas.

This was the message to the people who oppose Hitler in every part of the world, from a man who ought to know the German score. . . . James W. Gerard, United States ambassador to Germany during the first World war.

Gerard predicted that Hitler might attempt to throw a scare into the British with an invasion, thus forcing the British army units into keeping large forces at home.

Gerard added that Hitler might further his attempts to beat the Allies into submission with attacks on Gibraltar and Spanish Morocco, and that in any event, Nazi submarines will be more active than ever in their attacks on the supply lines for North Africa and Russia."

"The most fantastic moves," Mr. Gerard warned, "will be made by Hitler and his miserable puppets to force poor France into war with the United Nations!"

Another note of warning was added when the former ambassador warned the nation to be on guard against an attempted landing on American shores by the Japanese. "Sooner or later," he said, "the Japanese will try a desperate invasion of the coasts of the United States or Alaska."

To offset the possibility that the now impoverished France might be forced into all the calamities of war with the Allies, Mr. Gerard stated that our landing in Africa has given new hope to the French."

"It is there," he claimed, "that the patriotism of France will have free outlet. It is there that the star of hope rises for the broken people of France."

The idea of coddling the people of Germany once they are vanquished is repugnant to Gerard.

"International bankers make me sick," he protested. "I heard one say that we need, after the war, a happy and prosperous Germany. After the last war we kissed the good, kind Germans, gave them food and American money, and they repaid us by a gangster war to control the world and started a persecution of a peaceful people which has no parallel, even in the Middle Ages."

Gerard prophesied that the United States and the United Nations would police Germany "in the interest of world security, and in the interest of the Germans themselves, who otherwise will be torn to pieces by the outraged peoples of Europe!"

Fourth Term, If

The people will draft President Roosevelt for a fourth term if the war has not ended by 1944, United States Senator James M. Mead (D.) of New York, shown above, predicts. If hostilities have ended the president will refuse renomination to lead the American delegation to the peace conference, Mead says.

CAR KILLS WOLF

AVA, Mo. —(U.P.)— As long as his gas ration holds out, Weldon Thompson should have no trouble with the wolves that occasionally roam the area. Driving home one night recently, he spied a full-grown animal on the road and promptly ran it down with his car. The county court paid him the usual bounty in spite of his unorthodox ammunition. This is not recommended as an excuse to ask your ration board for more gasoline.

OPEN CAMPAIGN FOR RED CROSS FUNDS IN GALION

150 Workers Begin Drive To Raise $10,300 For War Relief.

GALION — With a goal of $10,300 to be reached, the second War Fund drive of the American Red Cross was launched in Galion and Polk township this morning.

A meeting was held last night at Hotel Talbott of the 150 volunteer workers of the drive to hear an address by Edwin T. Thayer, assistant field director, American Red Cross, Fort Knox, Ky., on leave as a special war fund representative.

Thayer addressed the public school students bodies Wednesday morning, and at noon appeared at Hotel Talbott before members of the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs and the Galion Merchants association.

Paul E. Nollen is chairman of this year's drive in Galion.

STARTS DRIVE FOR MEMBERS

Fredericktown Church Begins Evangelism Program With Sunday Service.

FREDERICKTOWN—Beginning Sunday morning, March 14, when a group of workers chosen by their pastor, Dr. Bruce T. Riley, will be consecrated at the altar of the church, a program of visitation evangelism at Fredericktown's Methodist church will be conducted during the week.

This group will meet again Sunday at 2 p. m., Ohio time, for a prayer retreat, and for instruction in the aims and methods of the program.

Then on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, all will assemble at the church at 6 p. m., when assignments will be made for each evening's work, plans discussed, and all efforts co-ordinated.

Then the visitors will go out two by two, to call upon non-members of the church to invite them into the fellowship of the church. The latter part of the week will be devoted to completion of the work.

At the same time, the efforts of the pastor and the church school staff, which have been going on for several weeks, will be brought into focus for the organization of a class of preparatory members among the children and young people of the church community.

CONVOY WORK SAPS NERVES

Merchant Seamen Suffer From Strain, Lack of Rest on Long Trips.

NEW YORK— (INS) —'Convoy fatigue' is a new ailment produced by the war at sea and is found only among merchant seamen according to Lt Commander Daniel Blain, M D, U S N R medical director of the United Seamens service and the War Shipping administration

Unable to get proper sleep, the prey to constant apprehension, and with no opportunity to defend himself in life-threatening situations, the merchant seaman, even though neither torpedoed nor bombed, often comes home exhausted, with nervous indigestion, insomnia, trembling, the victim of nightmares, irritability and extreme nervous tension. This, according to Dr. Blain, is "convoy fatigue."

It is not a disease, and most men throw it off spontaneously because the type is a rugged individual, refusing to be regimented and relying on himself completely So the superficial seeming lack of discipline among merchant seamen, in contrast with naval men may be a necessary condition of their survival.

Naval seamen escape convoy fatigue' because they know they are able to strike back systematically at enemies This potential avenue of emotional release relieves them of tension, whether they come under fire or not

United Seamens service operates nine recuperation centers for merchant seamen here and abroad also hotels and clubs

CUPID WINS IN SHOE MIX-UP

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal—(UP)—WAAC Lt. Mary O'Brien, on duty at Fort Ord, needed a new pair of shoes for her wedding. She commissioned her friend Lt. Sheela O Leary, as maid of honor, to purchase them for her But the shoe dealer demanded sugar ration coupon No 17.

As a WAAC, Lieutenant O'Leary never had a ration card But her ration board secured a special dispensation for her Then, to her joy when she went to buy the shoes she found that Lieutenant O Brien had already been to town from Fort Ord and had even purchased a pair of shoes for Lieutenant O'Leary. So all was set for the wedding

CAT IGNORES RESCUER

OAKLAND Cal — (UP) — A black cat here set a new record for the proverbial ingratitude of cats. After sitting on the ledge of a 3-story building for two days, mewing in protest, until Fire Officer George McArdle risked his life in getting an extension ladder almost within reach, when the cat jumped 60 feet to the street below landed unharmed in a flower bed, and disdainfully walked away

CONVOY WORK SAPS NERVES

Merchant Seamen Suffer From Strain, Lack of Rest on Long Trips.

NEW YORK — (INS — Convoy fatigue' is a new ailment produced by the war at sea and is found only among merchant seamen according to Lt Commander Daniel Blain, M. D. U S N R medical director of the United Seamen's service and the War Shipping administration

Unable to get proper sleep, the prey to constant apprehension, and with no opportunity to defend himself in life-threatening situations, the merchant seaman, even though neither torpedoed nor bombed, often comes home exhausted, with nervous indigestion, insomnia, trembling, the victim of nightmares, irritability and extreme nervous tension. This, according to Dr. Blain, is "convoy fatigue."

It is not a disease, and most men throw it off spontaneously because the type is a rugged individual, refusing to be regimented and relying on himself completely So the superficial seeming lack of discipline among merchant seamen in contrast with naval men may be a necessary condition of their survival

Naval seamen escape convoy fatigue' because they know they are able to strike back systematically at enemies This potential avenue of emotional release relieves them of tension, whether they come under fire or not

United Seamen's service operates nine recuperation centers to merchant seamen here and abroad also hotels and clubs

U. S. ENGINEERS WORK MIRACLE IN AUSTRALIA

Convert Unprotected Country Almost Overnight Into Vast Arsenal.

SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRALIA —INS— To believe it, you would have to have seen it with your own eyes.

A vast, rugged continent, keyed to peace, was converted almost overnight into an arsenal for war; a nesting ground for giant bombers; a jumping-off place for combat-bound troops and airmen; a storehouse for the materials of war.

From this nation of Australia, which only a brief year ago was one of the least-protected of Pacific nations, have gone the bombers and the warships which smashed the Japanese in the Coral sea; which night after night have pierced the heart of enemy power in the Southwest Pacific with devastating bombardment attacks against Rabaul and against the Buin-Faisi concentrations in the Solomons; which day after day help keep the sea-lanes of the Western Pacific clear of the foe.

And from Australia, too, have gone the "Diggers" and the Yanks who today, after months of weary war, hold the initiative and mastery in New Guinea.

That Australia could ever assume a leading military role in Pacific warfare seemed only a remote possibility a year ago.

With most of her trained troops overseas and with her war stocks depleted by empire demands Australia, to all appearances, was at the mercy of the southward-moving Jap.

Then the Americans arrived and the transformation began.

Working in closest co-operation with the Australian army, navy, and leaders of industry, the ground-work was prepared for the re-arming of a nation and of a nation's manufacturing power.

From the barren, blazing bush country of Australia, airdromes and air depots suddenly appeared and became bee-hives of activity.

Great supply centers were established in key areas, with skilled American and Australian material officers directing the dispersal of weapons of war to a hundred different menaced outposts.

Air corps reinforcements were rushed in and rushed right out again to the battlefronts. Operational aircraft were needed only one place: in the front lines of the Southwest Pacific war theater.

Within a few weeks, the basic pattern for the defense of Australia proper had been completed, and the Air corps had a chain of well-built, reserve airdromes from which it could operate against any invader.

The experts packed up their bags and went to New Guinea, where they completed a series of engineering feats probably unparalleled anywhere else in the world.

Roads were constructed over mountains five miles high with only the most primitive building materials available. From the floors of deep valleys airports were conceived and built; plateaus became fighter strips; mangrove swamps became dispersal areas.

Overhead, enemy bombers roared, occasionally, loosing a death-dealing "egg" on a vital construction project. And still the work went on.

There was no stopping, even when Japanese forces pushing over the Owen-Stanley ranges, were in shooting distance of some projects. And, the work was completed.

The New Guinea of today compared with a year ago would be much the same as planting a city of skyscrapers in Death Valley.

Men—Americans and Australians—fought a war of death and of nature, and won.

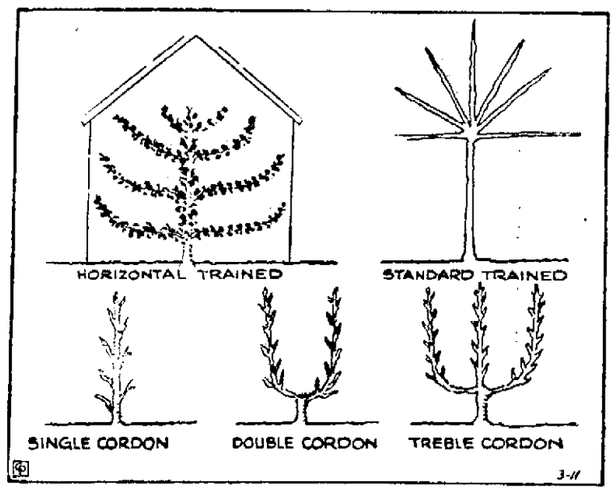
Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH



Miniature Orchard In Victory Garden.

By DEAN HALLIDAY
(Released by Central Press Ass'n.)

Many people planning a Victory garden in a not too large backyard do not realize that along with their vegetables they can also have a miniature orchard which will take almost no ground or air space. To accomplish this, however, one must plant Espalier trees which are dwarf fruit trees trained like vines. An Espalier fruit tree, for example, can be planted to grow flat against the sunny side of a garage, as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph. Espalier fruit trees can also be used along fences, walls or on a trellis. They are decorative, as well as fruitful, when planted in series between windows.

Espalier trees, in fact, are usually decorative plantings throughout the year, with their bright blossoms, glossy foliage, highly colored fruits and interesting trained conformations. As illustrated, these trees can be purchased in many trained forms, such as horizontal trained, standard trained, single cordon, double cordon or treble cordon. Espalier trained trees include apple, pear, plum, peach, nectarine and apricot.

Sometimes Espalier trees planted in early spring bear fruit the same year, but usually it is the second year before they bear. Although the trees are dwarfed, the fruit is not, being large and excellent in flesh and flavor. Espalier trees being dwarf in size and flat in shape against a wall are easy to spray, and for the small reason it is easy to harvest the fruit.

FIRE TRUCK LOSES HOSE

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill.—(U.P.)—The fire truck is red and so were the firemen when the truck lost its hose on the way to a fire recently. As the truck careened down the street the two-block long hose shot out and deposited itself like a tail in the center of the street. Under the fascinated gaze of passersby, firemen did a hasty job of rewinding and zoomed off to the fire.

Dodge Ceilings On Implements At Country Sales

MARYSVILLE — (INS) — Ceiling prices may have been set on some farm machinery but it appears that farmers and auctioneers are taking advantage of no ceiling prices on added items to make the sales worth while.

One instance of such a "deal" was recorded recently in Union county where a farm auction was being held. Several bidders offered the ceiling price of $633 for a tractor, and the auctioneers in order to make a deal, placed a breaking plow and cultivator for sale along with the tractor.

No ceiling prices being set on these implements, the highest bidder on the side items,, got them and the tractor, paying the ceiling price for the latter. The plow and cultivator brought $565, about $300 more than their normal value.

In another instance a bale of straw was reported to have brought $200 with the buyer being privileged to take the accompanying tractor at the ceiling price.

British farmers have increased their production of foodstuffs by more than 6,000,000 tons annually.

All Quiet on the Eastern Front

Death has come as a friend to this friendless young German—struck down on a bleak Russian hillside—for it has released him from the frightful chaos of blood and fire and freezing cold into which the mad ambition of the Nazis had thrust him. A Russian infantryman, at right, thumbs through snapshots taken from the boy's body, seeking a clue to his name, rank and regiment, and his native village. The picture is a scene from March of Time's "One Day of War" movie.

GYPSIES GIVE UP ROAMING TO HELP GROW NATION'S WAR CROPS

FRESNO, Cal. —(U.P.)— Migrants are nothing new to California, but the migrants haven't always been real gypsies.

Now, however, more than 200 gypsies of the non-fortune-telling variety are settled in the San Joaquin valley. All of them are too busy working in vital war crops for the food-for-freedom program to have their palms crossed with silver.

More gypsies are expected to arrive soon, ordered to this area by Louis Mort, farm labor co-ordinator for the Romany clans throughout the United States. One of the tribesmen pointed out that gypsies long since have given up horsetrading for nomad agricultural labor, touring the entire west from Southern California to Idaho, depending on where Mort feels they are needed.

The police chief of Mendota, where the Romany camp is established, reported that they are well-behaved citizens. Managers for whom they are harvesting crops say they are excellent workers. Most of them work in carrot and broccoli fields, but younger ones are in the armed forces or nearby defense industries.

To be on good terms with a gypsy, it's best to refer to him as a Romany. The name "gypsy," they feel, has unpleasant connotations of sharp dealings in horse tradings. They also scoff at the theory that every Romany clan has its own king.

"The president of the United States is our king," one said.

Names of clan members are confusing even to some of the gypsies. They themselves are not sure where or when they acquired such surnames as Peterson or Jones. One Romany explained it by saying:

"Maybe my folks did not know how to spell their real name when they landed at Ellis Island."

Widely scattered as they are throughout the country, the Romanies remain closely knit. When Mort wires to one area for farm hands for another, the response always is prompt. As one gypsy said:

"The Romany people, like all other good Americans, will do all they can to help win the war."

Port wine is named after the town of Oporto, Portugal.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

My father's eyes twinkled at my indirect question, and I saw that the success of his ruse to trap Milner had put him in high good humor.

"If you could catch a glimpse of Redfield, as Adams described him to me, you would be very sure he would stage no scene at your party," my father said. "Adams said Milner went berserk after he had listened in on my conversation, his first thought being that Mary was acting the role of a Mata Hari and had induced Steve to reveal everything to her—Steve's own connection with the affair, also Milner's.

"Milner took Adams with him and went directly to Steve's room. There he found Winters, who told him about the scene Steve had been staging. Then Milner played Steve inch by inch, Adams said, accusing him of telling Mary about the document.

Steve Under Orders.

"Milner didn't tell Steve that he himself had taken the document while Steve was still unconscious from Noel's blow, and Steve is still muddling over it. Milner told him that from now on, until they find out how much I already know, Steve is not to make a move except by Milner's permission, and must report to Milner regularly. For the rest of tonight Winters is to mount guard over Steve, so you see I speak only the truth when I tell you he will not disturb your party."

"And if Milner flies to Washington," I began hesitantly, and my father finished:

"The problem of getting Georges to the Veritzen party and back undetected is much simplified. While he's there I will see that all his small belongings are put into the armored car which later will take him to the hideaway. Are you ready to go now?"

Then seeing the dismay on my face, he said apologetically:

"Of course not. Pray forgive me. I remember now that Georges and Halloran were to be finished with your bedroom by 11:30, so you could dress in there in time to get to the party at midnight."

He looked at his watch and his eyebrows narrowed

"I have kept you unconscionably," he said, "but I know how quickly you can dress."

"I will act as her maid," Katharine said. "She'll be ready on time."

"If you can make it a little before time," he said, "I shall be grateful. I don't want to give Milner time to remember his frustrated curiosity over the playwright guest expected at the Verrizon party."

His knock at the bedroom door brought Halloran.

"Have you finished with the room?" he said.

"All through," Halloran said, "and I am ready to go home! And how this young man is going to go through a party is more than I can see."

Madge's Worry Revived.

"If you'd been away from parties as long as I have," Georges said with a rueful laugh, "you'd forget there ever was such a thing as fatigue."

"Maybe so—thirty years ago," Halloran answered, and hurriedly left us.

Then we all turned to Georges with frankly admiring eyes.

"He certainly has done a wonderful job," my father said, and Katharine and I echoed his comment. But to my disquiet, Georges was altogether too handsome and debonair, for I was again fearing Mary's reaction, in case Georges showed her open admiration.

A knock at the outer door startled me out of my troubled conjectures, and as my father started for the door he said to Georges:

"Into the bedroom until I see who this is. It can't be Milner," he added.

"It isn't Milner," I said, rushing past him. "I know the knock."

I opened the door the length of the chain, and finished in a joyous cry.

"It's Dicky!"

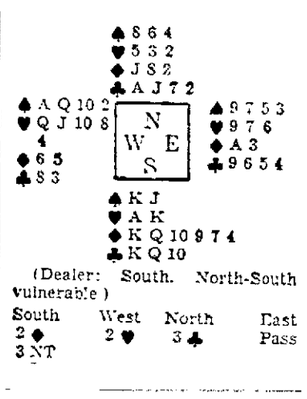
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

HAVE A GOOD RULE

If you are going to use a rule to guide you in a certain kind of situation, try to have it be a good rule. It is not a good one for a declarer to play always the highest card of a sequence, in an effort to make the defenders think he lacks the lower ones. Sometimes the opponent already knows about one or more of those cards, and you can't fool him except by making him guess about the other one.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
2 ♦	2 ♥	3 ♣	Pass
3 NT

Different bidding from that occurred at the other table of a four-of-four match but the contract and opening lead were the same. The result depended on a simple thing, what was done by South on the very first trick.

At one table, South took the heart Q with the K. When East was in at the next trick with his diamond A, he returned the heart 9, having read that his partner might have had from a long suit headed by the A-Q-J. As a consequence, South got two tricks in the suit, plus five in diamonds and four in clubs, for a total of 11 making the contract with two tricks to spare.

At the other table, South used his heart A on the first trick and then led the diamonds to the A. In this case, East already knew that West did not have the spade K. The lead of the Q had told him so. Consequently use of the A by declarer made it clear the suit was still stopped by the K. East therefore held the desperation lead of a spade. West won the J with the Q, dropped the K with the A and beat the contract with two more spade tricks.

Tomorrow's Problem.

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, March 12.

According to the lunar transits this is a day on which large issues are at stake, with the energies and faculties keyed up to high tension to meet them. All should be attacked with boldness, vigor and a real sense of the responsibilities involved. Fresh efforts applied to lagging interests may also succeed.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of high pressure and probably hectic experiences, with all the forces and faculties pitched to high gear in order to put over ambitious programs. The public or community welfare may be involved and extraordinary efforts in the line of duty or personal responsibilities should not be permitted to overtax the strength, physical and nervous.

A child born on this day may have excellent talents and skills, practical, constructive and aggressive, but may be subject to imposition or duplicity and may be disposed to overtax its strength.

Gamma Mu Sigma Has Recent Meet

The Gamma Mu Sigma missionary society of the First Christian church met at the home of Mrs. Leona Warner and Miss Helen Belz, 128 Glessner avenue.

The study topic under the leadership of Mrs. Eddie Hamblin was "Mexico and Puerto Rico." Two papers were given, one on Mexico, "The Church," by Mrs. Hamblin, and "Impressions of Mexico" by Charles Fuqua was presented by Mrs. Richard Hammell.

Mrs. Robert Crowl had charge of the worship program. Her topic was "Missionary Messages of the Bible."

Refreshments were served, carrying out the St. Patrick's day color scheme in favors and appointments. The next meeting, scheduled for April 2 will be held at the home of Mrs. Glenn Hildebrand, 116 Dawson avenue.

PYTHIAN SISTERS.

The Pythian Sisters will meet Friday evening at the K. of P. hall.

Miss Stover Hostess To Classy Lassies

The meeting of the "Classy Lassies" was held at the home of Miss Mary Stover, 132½ Marion avenue, Wednesday night. Miss Beverly Miles was hostess for the affair.

The Misses Marge Miles and Opal Heckert were welcomed into the club as new members. Cards and games were played with prizes going to Miss Kathryn Knaggs. At a late hour, refreshments were served.

The next meeting will be in the form of a covered dish dinner, March 24 at the home of Miss Mary Burkholder, 90 Harker street.

LARKSPUR CLUB.

Mrs. Nettie Mentzer, 348 East Fourth street, entertained members of the Larkspur club Wednesday night. A color scheme of brown and green was used when luncheon was served. Prizes were won by Mrs. Regina Gresser, Mrs. Sadie Adams, Mrs. Jennie Grice and Mrs. Bertha Coleman. Mrs. Frances Heinberger was welcomed as a new member. The next meeting will be held April 7 at the home of Mrs. Jennie Shadel, South Diamond street.

STORY OF TEXAS NEWSMAN TOLD IN NEW BOOK

'Eddie and the Archangel Mike' Appears on City's Library List.

The delightful story, EDDIE AND THE ARCHANGEL MIKE by Barry Benefield, is among the new books to be added to the shelves of the Mansfield Public library, Saturday.

It tells of Eddie Tayloe, red-haired copy-reader on a Texas newspaper who is destined for one real break in his rather humdrum life—a girl whom he picks up on a southern highway. A cast of real characters, sudden dramatic situations and a swift, smooth and skillful style all make this story one of the bright spots in contemporary fiction.

UNDER RUNNING LAUGHTER by David Manners is a satisfying love story of contrasts and emotional conflicts in an Ontario timber mill town. The leading character, Brook Sand is faced by the dilemma of following her heart or marrying the son of the mill president.

Action and color, love and revenge, are set in a background of early-day Arizona in this exciting new Clarence Budington Kelland novel, SUGARFOOT—the story of two young men who had nothing in common but their love for Reva Cairn.

Other fiction includes: ACTION BY NIGHT, Havcox, WOLF IN MAN'S CLOTHING, Eberhart, BLIND MANS BLUFF, Kendrick.

PACIFIC CHARTER: OUR DESTINY IN ASIA by Hallett Abend is a hard-hitting realistic evaluation of our stake in the Pacific area from the point of view of a hypothetical "Pacific Charter." Abend thinks that the crisis in Europe and the close ties between Britain and the United States have tended to depreciate the importance of the Pacific locale, and he shows the whole course of the Pacific problem not alone in terms of history but in terms of the many personalities who crossed his path. Another book by the same author is "Ramparts of the Pacific."

SOUTH OF THE CONGO by Selwyn James is a clear and authoritative book on Africa below the "bulge." The Union under Smuts, Madagascar Tanganyika Rhodesia, the Congo etc. The United Nations' plans around the Cape of Good Hope depend upon the good will of these countries. This book does for Southern Africa what Gunther did for Asia and South America.

TOBACCO TYCOON by John K. Winkler is a biography of James Buchanan Duke the life of a North Carolina boy who fought and schemed his way to control the entire tobacco industry in America and changed the smoking habits of the nation. This study, written in Mr Winkler's colorful and dramatic style, emphasizes the human elements in the career and achievements of this dynamic and rugged individualist.

THE UNITED STATES AT WAR is an Army and Navy Journal covering the period from Dec. 7, 1941 to Dec. 7, 1942. It contains articles on all phases of the war effort and is a record of our failures and achievements in our first year of war. Included, too, are such topics as India's War Effort; France at War; Australia In the War; and many more.

Other non-fiction includes: BUILDERS OF LATIN AMERICA, Stewart and Peterson. When DOCTORS VOL. RATIONED, Anderson and Davlous. THIS IS CONGRESS, Young. AMERICAN ENGLISH GRAMMAR, Fries. BASIC ELECTRICITY, Feurer and Williams. MODERN PLYWOOD, Perry. CHILDREN'S CENTERS, Alschuler. A CHARTER FOR PROGRESSIVE EDUCATION, Dix. COUNSELING YOUNG WORKERS, Culbert and Smith. PREDICTS END OF CROP LOSSES DUE TO WEATHER

Iowa Man Says Farmers Will Know What Season's To Be Like In Advance.

By WALDO WIESE

DES MOINES —(AP)— A time when crop failures due to the weather will be virtually unheard of is foreseen by a weather expert whose hobby for nearly half a century has been long range forecasting.

Charles D. Reed, federal meteorologist for Iowa, predicted today that when the war is ended, there will be a trend toward long range forecasting that will "eliminate crop failures, at least as far as the weather is concerned."

Reed has been in the weather service 43 years and during most of that time has taken a special interest in the possibilities of such forecasting.

His ability along that line has been recognized by superiors in Washington and he recently spent two months in the capital working on long range forecasts.

Reed believes atmospheric conditions move in cycles and that by carefully studying weather records and atmospheric abnormalities for past decades (weather bureau charts and data go back to 1873), a meteorologist can establish definite relationships that will enable him to forecast the weather nearly a year ahead in any given area.

In addition to the cycle situation, Reed said he has discovered a tendency for abnormal weather to persist. If the abnormality is very marked it may persist from one to five months. The greater the abnormality, the more certain the sequence.

For example, he said there apparently is a connection between the barometric pressure at Rio De Janeiro in September, October and November and prolonged heat waves in the heart of the midwest corn belt the following summer.

If the pressure is high in Rio in the fall it likely will be warmer than normal the following summer in Iowa, and parts of the surrounding states.

If that relationship can be established it will result in widespread changes in crop practices, he said. Farmers could find out in mid-winter whether they should plan on a torrid or cool summer.

They could order the type of seed designed to grow best under the weather conditions in prospect.

With such a start, crops would be able to withstand without serious damage any sudden temporary changes in the weather, Reed said.

The meteorologist emphasized that abnormal conditions must exist before there is a basis for working out long range forecast relationships.

He also asserted that any long range forecasts would concern only limited local areas. For instance, the Rio-corn belt relationship affects the weather only in the section of the corn belt of which Iowa is the center. Some other atmospheric abnormality would have to be found that dovetailed with abnormal conditions the following year in other areas.

NO RIDING FOR CADETS

DEL MONTE, Cal.—(UP)—Naval aviation cadets now undergoing a strenuous three-month toughening-up at the new Del Monte preflight school here, have been ordered to "walk not ride" while on week-end liberty. Riding tends to soften cadets, while the aim of the pre-flight school is to condition fliers to withstand all physical discomforts, navy authorities explained in issuing the edict.

SOLDIERS VIE IN DUNKING

STARKE, Fla.—(UP) The old-fashioned pie-eating contest, as a means of entertainment, has given way in the USO club here to doughnut dunking contests.

Praises Children For Their Work In School Gardens

DES MOINES —(INS)— Agnes Samuelson, executive secretary of the Iowa State Teachers association, today pointed to the part played in the victory program by American school children.

Last year 169,000 acres of victory gardens were planted by pupils of the nation's schools, Miss Samuelson declared, and at the present time recruits for the summer vacation army of farm workers are preparing for farm duties.

Teachers and pupils, she said, last year sold $81,000,000 worth of war stamps and bonds and recruited 14,000,000 workers for the Junior Red Cross.

Students aided the government by making a half-million airplane models at the urgent request of the armed forces, according to Miss Samuelson, while teachers devoted 38,000,000 hours to wartime rationing and selective service duties and to the extra rationing duties connected with the issuing of ration books for canned goods.

Desert cave dwellers, called troglodytes, make up a large part of the Tunisian rural population.

THURSDAY, MARCH 11, 1943 — PAGE THIRTEEN

TELEPHONE 4251-6

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

WASHINGTON—Some Republicans in congress are in favor of a truce to permit the reciprocal trade act to stand until after the war.

The present act expires June 30. Naturally the administration wants it extended. Repudiation of the policy now, of all times, would work serious damage to our international relations. It would handicap our officials severely in all diplomatic negotiations that must be carried on in connection with the war.

Clapper

Those considerations appeal to some Republicans although the party has been almost unanimously against the trade agreements act. When the measure was first passed, only two Republicans in the house voted for it, and only five Republican senators. On renewals, Republicans cast a unanimous vote against it once in the house and once in the senate.

Senator McNary, the Republican leader of the senate, has his own objections to the reciprocal trade policy, as it has been carried out by the present administration. But he doubts if this is the proper time to make a fight for its repeal or serious modification. He is suggesting to his fellow senators that the act be extended until after the war. Senator McNary would make it clear that the Republicans have not abandoned their objections to the act but are only withholding them until a more appropriate time.

Somewhat the same view is taken by Rep. Clifford Hope of Kansas, the ranking Republican on the house agriculture committee. This is, as Hope says, a matter properly for the house ways and means committee, but Hope's personal attitude is significant because he comes from the heart of the farm belt where the opposition to the reciprocal program is strongest. He also has had a good deal to do with shaping Republican party expressions on agricultural policy.

House Republicans are more aggressive in their opposition to the trade agreements act than the Republicans in the senate. Nevertheless as Rep. Hope says, it is a poor time to raise the issue and no harm can be done by continuing the act during the war. Also there is some suggestion in the house of providing, as has been done with some of the war legislation, that congress could terminate the act at any time by concurrent resolution—that is by majority action of both houses without the signature of the president.

Any such action by congress should be accepted not as indicating a change of heart on the part of the Republicans but rather as their contribution to national unity and to the strengthening of the government in its war-time dealings with foreign governments.

Republicans might not be willing to admit it, but I have a strong suspicion that some of the more farsighted among them are thinking that if the Republicans come into power in the 1944 elections, they just might want to keep the reciprocal trade act. As a matter of self-interest, it is a most useful weapon for the government in breaking down trade restrictions against us by other nations.

Republicans might keep it as the Democrats kept the Hawley-Smoot tariff. The Democrats denounce the Hawley-Smoot act as a monstrosity but they have never seriously tried to get rid of it. In fact, the administration finds this high tariff a useful reservoir from which to trade concessions under the reciprocal power.

* * *

Republicans are steadily broadening their outlook. For instance, Gov. Stassen of Minnesota represents a new broader-gauge statesmanship that is finding voice also among numerous other younger Republicans. They know, as Gov. Stassen says, that whole we might not want to put all of our eggs in the international basket, we should place some of them there on the chance that they might hatch something better than recurring wars.

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

CHICAGO—This is not going to be contentious but something on the learned side about oleomargarine, so if you have something else to do you may be excused.

Although we are very hard up for butter and will not be able to meet the demand, we still have on our books federal and state laws against margarine which some medical authorities have indorsed as a good substitute. It is made of both animal fat and vegetable oils derived from cottonseed, the soybean and coconuts and, in some cases, of a mixture of both. In some cases, too, it contains a proportion of real butter.

Pegler

There is a strong prejudice or superstition against margarine, a hangover from the sensational pure food and drug crusade of 40 years ago when pious deacons and old ladies would get cockeyed on patent medicines to cure the misery, never suspecting that they were rum pots.

Some of the oleo was misrepresented as real butter and much of it was sold as butterine and, no doubt, in those experimental days it did contain some fragments of hide, hoof and horn and some of it turned rancid.

Taking advantage of this, the dairy states lobbied through federal legislation to restrict the sale of margarine and cast suspicion on it for the benefit of the dairy industry. Although its parole report has been excellent since then, people nevertheless remember that margarine once was indicted by the grand jury, so to speak.

The federal government requires a tax of one-fourth of a cent a pound from the manufacturer and a license tax of $6 a year from the retailer and various states have tariffs running from five to 15 cents a pound.

Pennsylvania collects $500 a year from each jobber and $100 from each retailer in addition. The result is that, in Pennsylvania, about 70 per cent of the margarine is sold by chain stores and comparatively few independent dealers handle it. Montana collects $1000 a year from the distributor and $400 from the retailer. In Minnesota, the tariff is 15 cents a pound on margarine containing less than 65 per cent of animal fat. Wisconsin, Nebraska and Washington state collect 15 cents a pound on all margarine and the rate is 10 cents in North Dakota and Wyoming and a nickel in Idaho, Utah and Iowa.

Margarine is sold uncolored, although most butter is artificially colored so as to present the year around rich appearance that is natural only in the spring, and some butter is artificially flavored, too. However, vegetable coloring matter is sold with margarine to be mixed in by the consumer if he wants to. It appeals only to the eye, though. It makes no difference in the quality or taste, and if butter were sold without coloring it would not be perceptibly gayer in appearance than margarine, ten months of the years.

Recently, the same federal government which stigmatizes margarine by the tax and the retail license fee, has been buying quantities of it, nevertheless, for the fighting men simply because there is not enough butter to be had. The Thomas E. Wilson company, packers, now can supply only about 25 per cent of the business tendered so perhaps we will be lucky to get even marge, as the British call it, by the end of the year. The John F. Jelke company, whose product is made solely of vegetable oil, has sold about 25 carloads to the army in the last few weeks. The government will take, for all purposes; including lend-lease, more than 100 million pounds this year.

Apparently, in such situations, any interested party can buy medical opinion to defend the virtues of his own goods or disparage the other man's. Thus, the dairyman probably can cite learned verdicts that margarine is axle grease and unfit food for man or beast, which would be a harsh arraignment of the army in view of the purchases for soldiers.

On the other hand the margarine producers have medical opinions which insist that oleo is practically leaping with vitamins and suggest that the tariffs and other fees were imposed not for the public protection, but as trade restrictions of doubtful legality.

Anyway, if margarine is bad for people, no tariff makes it any better.

ASKS FARMING BE CLASSED AS WAR ESSENTIAL

Bricker to Present Ohio Plan To Governors of Eleven Midwest States.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— A program to alleviate farm labor and machinery shortages will be presented by Gov. John W. Bricker to chief executives of 11 midwestern agricultural states meeting at Des Moines, Ia., next Monday.

Bricker said the plan, recommended by the Ohio War Agricultural committee which predicted yesterday that 1943 Ohio farm production would drop 11 per cent below the 1942 level, was based on surveys by state and private agricultural agencies.

It urges the federal government to:

"Recognize agriculture as a war industry essential in securing priorities for equipment, supplies and manpower; release immediately farm machinery and equipment and supplies now in factories, branch houses and the hands of dealers so that it can be used by farmers in spring operations;

"Have the war production board immediately raise steel allotments for the manufacture of farm equipment to at least 50 per cent of 1941 production x x x ; furlough skilled farm workers in armed services, unless they are already in foreign service or specialized training before May 1, so they will be available for 1943 planting and harvesting;

"Eliminate red tape hampering the farmers' efforts to obtain machinery, material and supplies and free his time for productive efforts on the farm; lift restrictions immediately in time for spring planting season since indications are that ample nitrogen for fertilizer is available."

The committee informed the governor 11,000 Ohio farms would be abandoned this year and farmers had 36 per cent less hired labor and 24 per cent less family help than a year ago.

The group estimated approximately the same number of acres would be farmed this year as last but commented it could "not be farmed as well or as intensively."

Serious feed shortages can be expected next fall and winter if yields are normal and the same acreage is planted in 1943 as last year, the group asserted.

GET PHYSICALS

200 Draftees Go To Columbus For Examinations.

More than 200 Mansfield draftees, most of whom were of the 18-19 age group, left Selective Service Boards No. 1 and 2 yesterday and today for physical examination and subsequent induction into U. S. service at Ft. Hayes, Columbus. Even larger calls are indicated for April, board officials said, although exact numbers have not been revealed.

Board 3, serving the county outside of Mansfield and Madison township, will send two groups yet this month, on March 18 and 25. Another large quota is to be sent in April, board attaches were informed.

April quotas of the city boards will undoubtedly be the largest to date, board officials said. Board 3 has had larger calls in the past few months than any other of the Mansfield boards.

Draftees are permitted to return home for a week following their induction, under the present plan, unless they prefer to remain following their induction.

DEATH CLAIMS R. E. CAMPBELL

Cocktail Lounge Proprietor Taken By Death; Had Been Ill Four Days.

Ralph E. Campbell, 65, well known proprietor of Campbell's Cocktail Lounge, 17 South Walnut street, died this morning in General hospital following a four-days illness of heart trouble.

Mr. Campbell was born in Zanesville, Sept. 15, 1878, but had resided in Mansfield 40 years. Prior to coming here he had spent three years in Alaska at the turn of the century when he responded to the gold rush lure. He was preceded in death in 1932 by his wife, Mrs. Maude Trumpower Campbell. The home was at 135 West Fourth street.

Mr. Campbell is survived by a stepdaughter, Mrs. Eugene Buhrman; an aunt, Mrs. Henrietta Wappner, and an uncle, P. A. Michael.

The body is at the Jones Memorial where funeral services will be conducted at 3 p. m. Saturday. Rev. Grover E. Swoyer of First Lutheran church officiating. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

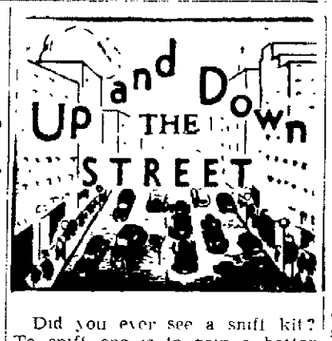
SYNTHETICS APPROVED

AKRON —(INS)— Tires made with synthetic rubber were approved today for use in commercial airline flying by the Civil Aeronautics Administration. Joseph S. Pedlar, manager of the aeronautics division of the B. F. Goodrich company, announced.



Did you ever see a sniff kit? To sniff one is to gain a better understanding of it. They are compact little kits, with five tightly corked bottles fitted inside. In each little bottle is the makings of a—supply your own adjective—odor, suggestive of various types of poison gases with which Civilian Defense organizers believe their auxiliary police and air raid warden should be familiar. These civilian officers are supplied with the odoriferous outfits.

Two Mansfield brothers who have been thousands of miles apart in the armed forces know now that it's a small world during war-time. Returning home from a year's service in Hawaii, Cpl. Pete Kunz changed trains in Chicago and as he boarded the Mansfield-bound coach he saw his brother, Nick Kunz, get on at the other end. They rode home together. Nick, who is in navy training at Great Lakes, Ill., was returning for his first leave. Neither knew the other was homeward bound. They are sons of Mr. and Mrs. John Kunz, 21 Orchard street.

Cleve Smith, 266 North Diamond street, told Patrolmen Floyd Bowers and John Grohol last night it was bad when his sugar was stolen but it got much worse when the vandals stole his razor, his pants and his bedding, while he was sleeping in a "Flats cider joint." The patrolmen arrested Willie Johnson and Thelma King on petit larceny charges after they found the bedding and the pants at the King woman's Longview avenue home. Later they arrested George Short and confiscated his jug of cider in connection with the robbery of Smith.

LABOR OPPOSES 'WOMEN'S WEEK'

Objects to 52-Hour Proposal Offered By Ohio Senate Commerce Committee.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Organized labor objected vigorously today to the senate commerce and labor committee's bill fixing a 52-hour work week for women, with provisions for war plants to exceed that limit.

Ted Silvey, secretary-treasurer of the Ohio CIO, asserted any such legislation would tend to drive women out of war production because they could not bear the extra hours.

He sent special delivery letters to 1385 local CIO leaders urging them to work for the bill's defeat.

Phil Hannah, secretary-treasurer of the Ohio Federation of Labor, also called upon his membership to register opposition.

The proposed relaxation of present laws regulating the employment of women and minors was recommended for passage by the committee late yesterday after four weeks of deliberation.

The employers generally gave their approval, and committee members said the bill had Gov. John W. Bricker's endorsement.

The bill probably will be brought up for a vote in the senate next Tuesday or Wednesday.

While the 52-hour a week minimum is set for all industries, plants manufacturing war materials could work women and minors additional hours in emergencies. They must report the extended schedule within 10 days to the state inspector of workshops in the industrial relations department.

If the inspector deemed a continuation of the extended hours harmful to the women employes, he could cite the situation to the state health director, who could require the employer to modify the working schedule.

The health director also would be empowered to prevent employment of women and minors in occupations considered harmful.

Mrs. Elizabeth Goff Succumbs At Mt. Gilead.

MT. GILEAD—Mrs. Elizabeth Goff, 81, died shortly after noon Wednesday at the home of her son, Elton Goff, in Mt. Gilead. She suffered a stroke two days ago.

Mrs. Goff was a native of Pennsylvania where she was born Feb. 4, 1862.

Two sons, Elton of Mt. Gilead, and John of Iberia, survive.

Services will be conducted Saturday at the Craven funeral home in Mt. Gilead. Burial will be in Bryn Zion cemetery.

SENATE OK'S $12,000,000 SUBSIDY PLAN

Measure to Retain Present Aid Figure For Local Governments Approved.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — The state's annual subsidy to local governments would be continued at $12,000,000 a year under a bill approved by the senate and sent to the house today.

Sen. Maurice W. Lipscher (D-Mahoning) sought unsuccessfully to have the amount increased to $17,000,000 a year on the ground that expenses of the cities and counties had increased heavily.

His Democratic floor leader, Sen. William M. Boyd of Cleveland, said he believed the voters approved the $12,000,000 figure when they reelected Gov. John W. Bricker last November.

The measure was passed 31 to 1, with Lipscher casting the dissenting vote.

The senate also approved a bill to allow members of the armed forces to operate an automobile without a driver's license if they possessed a license before entering the service.

Another provision of the bill, intended to help merchants cope with a shortage of delivery men, would lower from 18 years to 16 the age limit for issuance of chauffeurs' licenses.

The bill will be considered next by the house.

Proposed legislation to authorize creation of a state highway patrol auxiliary, consisting of not more than 200 men, struck a snag when it came up for a vote in the senate, and action was postponed.

While the measure is intended primarily to make guards available for conservancy district dams, the phrasing would make possible the protection of only those dams on the state highway system, Sen. Theodore M. Gray (R-Miami) told the senate.

The bill was expected to be brought up again today with its language revised.

The house conservation committee killed a bill by Rep. Henry R. Metcalf (R-Franklin) proposing to increase the fishing license fee from 50 cents to $1. The state conservation division told the committee this was no time to increase the fee.

DAMAGE HEAVY

Engineer Says Thaw Will Put County Roads in Bad State.

With repeated freezes and thaws occasioned by abrupt temperature changes, Richland county roads will be in the worst condition in years, after the spring thaw, County Engineer Howard Sword said today.

To take care of emergency repairs, the county crusher, Sword said, is now located near Pavonia where ballast from the old Erie railroad right-of-way is being utilized for inexpensive and more or less temporary repairs.

Sword said he had divided the county into four sections to expedite the matter of inspection with State Route 30 as an east and west dividing line and State Route 13 as the north and south division. Extensive damage was found on the roads south of State Route 30 where he has completed his investigation, Sword said.

STORY OF TEXAS NEWSMAN TOLD IN NEW BOOK

'Eddie and the Archangel Mike' Appears on City's Library List.

The delightful story, EDDIE AND THE ARCHANGEL MIKE by Barry Benefield, is among the new books to be added to the shelves of the Mansfield Public library, Saturday.

It tells of Eddie Taylor, red-haired copy-reader on a Texas newspaper who is destined for one real break in his rather humdrum life—a girl whom he picks up on a southern highway. A cast of real characters, sudden dramatic situations and, a swift, smooth and skillful style all make this story one of the bright spots in contemporary fiction.

UNDER RUNNING LAUGHTER by David Manners is a satisfying love story of contrasts and emotional conflicts in an Ontario timber mill town. The leading character, Brook Sand, is faced by the dilemma of following her heart or marrying the son of the mill president.

Action and color, love and revenge, are set in a background of early-day Arizona in this exciting new Clarence Budington Kelland novel, SUGARFOOT—the story of two young men who had nothing in common but their love for Reva Cairn.

Other fiction includes: ACTION BY NIGHT, Haycox, WOLF IN MAN'S CLOTHING, Eberhart; BLIND MANS BLUFF, Kendrick.

PACIFIC CHARTER: OUR DESTINY IN ASIA by Hallett Abend is a hard-hitting, realistic evaluation of our stake in the Pacific area from the point of view of a hypothetical "Pacific Charter." Abend thinks that the crisis in Europe and the close ties between Britain and the United States have tended to depreciate the importance of the Pacific locale; and he shows the whole course of the Pacific problem not alone in terms of history but in terms of the many personalities who crossed his path. Another book by the same author is "Ramparts of the Pacific."

SOUTH OF THE CONGO by Selwyn James is a clear and authoritative book on Africa below the "bulge." The Union under Smuts; Madagascar; Tanganyika, Rhodesia; the Congo, etc. The United Nations lifeline around the Cape of Good Hope depends upon the good will of these countries. This book does for Southern Africa what Gunther did for Asia and South America.

TOBACCO TYCOON by John K. Winkler is a biography of James Buchanan Duke, the life of a North Carolina boy who fought and schemed his way to control the entire tobacco industry in America and changed the smoking habits of the nation. This study, written in Mr. Winkler's colorful and dramatic style, emphasizes the human elements in the career and achievements of this dynamic and rugged individualist.

THE UNITED STATES AT WAR is an Army and Navy Journal covering the period from Dec. 7, 1941 to Dec. 7, 1942. It contains articles on all phases of the war effort and is a record of our failures and achievements in our first year of war. Included, too, are such topics as India's War Effort; France at War; Australia In the War; and many more.

Other non-fiction includes: BUILDERS OF LATIN AMERICA, Stewart and Peterson. When DOCTORS WERE RATIONED, Anderson and Baylous. THIS IS CONGRESS, Young. AMERICAN ENGLISH GRAMMAR, Fries; BASIC ELECTRICITY, Feirer and Williams. MODERN PLYWOOD, Perry. CHILDREN'S CENTERS, Alschuler. A CHARTER FOR PROGRESSIVE EDUCATION, Dix; COUNSELING YOUNG WORKERS, Culbert and Smith. MANUAL OF EXPLOSIVES, MILITARY PYROTECHNICS, AND CHEMICAL WARFARE AGENTS, Begbie.

PREDICTS END OF CROP LOSSES DUE TO WEATHER

Iowa Man Says Farmers Will Know What Season's To Be Like In Advance.

By WALDO WIESE

DES MOINES —(AP)— A time when crop failures due to the weather will be virtually unheard of is foreseen by a weather expert whose hobby for nearly half a century has been long range forecasting.

Charles D. Reed, federal meteorologist for Iowa, predicted today that when the war is ended, there will be a trend toward long range forecasting that will "eliminate crop failures, at least as far as the weather is concerned."

Reed has been in the weather service 43 years and during most of that time has taken a special interest in the possibilities of such forecasting.

His ability along that line has been recognized by superiors in Washington and he recently spent two months in the capital working on long range forecasts.

Reed believes atmospheric conditions move in cycles and that by carefully studying weather records and atmospheric abnormalities for past decades (weather bureau charts and data go back to 1873), a meteorologist can establish definite relationships that will enable him to forecast the weather nearly a year ahead in any given area.

In addition to the cycle situation, Reed said he has discovered a tendency for abnormal weather to persist. If the abnormality is very marked it may persist from one to five months. The greater the abnormality, the more certain the sequence.

For example, he said there apparently is a connection between the barometric pressure at Rio De Janeiro in September, October a. November and prolonged heat waves in the heart of the midwest corn belt the following summer.

If the pressure is high in Rio in the fall it likely will be warmer than normal the following summer in Iowa, and parts of the surrounding states.

If that relationship can be established it will result in widespread changes in crop practices, he said. Farmers could find out in mid-winter whether they should plan on a horrid or cool summer.

They could order the type of seed designed to grow best under the weather conditions in prospect.

With such a start, crops would be able to withstand without serious damage any sudden, temporary, changes in the weather, Reed said.

The meteorologist emphasized that abnormal conditions must exist before there is a basis for working out long range forecast relationships.

He also asserted that any long range forecasts would concern only limited local areas. For instance, the Rio-corn belt relationship affects the weather only in the section of the corn belt of which Iowa is the center. Some other atmospheric abnormality would have to be found that dovetailed with abnormal conditions the following year in other areas.

NO RIDING FOR CADETS

DEL MONTE, Cal.—(UP)—Naval aviation cadets now undergoing a strenuous three-month toughening-up at the new Del Monte preflight school here, have been ordered to "walk not ride" while on week-end liberty. Riding tends to soften cadets, while the aim of the pre-flight school is to condition fliers to withstand all physical discomforts, navy authorities explained in issuing the edict.

SOLDIERS VIE IN DUNKING

STARKE, Fla.—(UP)—The old-fashioned pie-eating contest, as a means of entertainment, has given way in the USO club here to doughnut dunking contests.

Praises Children For Their Work In School Gardens

DES MOINES—(INS)—Agnes Samuelson, executive secretary of the Iowa State Teachers association, today pointed to the part played in the victory program by American school children.

Last year 169,000 acres of victory gardens were planted by pupils of the nation's schools, Miss Samuelson declared, and at the present time recruits for the summer vacation army of farm workers are preparing for farm duties.

Teachers and pupils, she said, last year sold $81,000,000 worth of war stamps and bonds and recruited 14,000,000 workers for the Junior Red Cross.

Students aided the government by making a half-million airplane models at the urgent request of the armed forces, according to Miss Samuelson, while teachers devoted 38,000,000 hours to wartime rationing and selective service duties and to the extra rationing duties connected with the issuing of ration books for canned goods.

TELEPHONE 4251-6

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

WASHINGTON—Some Republicans in congress are in favor of a truce to permit the reciprocal trade act to stand until after the war.

The present act expires June 30. Naturally the administration wants it extended. Repudiation of the policy now, of all times, would work serious damage to our international relations. It would handicap our officials severely in all diplomatic negotiations that must be carried on in connection with the war.

Clapper

Those considerations appeal to some Republicans although the party has been almost unanimously against the trade agreements act. When the measure was first passed, only two Republicans in the house voted for it, and only five Republican senators. On renewals, Republicans cast a unanimous vote against it once in the house and once in the senate.

Senator McNary, the Republican leader of the senate, has his own objections to the reciprocal trade policy, as it has been carried out by the present administration. But he doubts if this is the proper time to make a fight for its repeal or serious modification. He is suggesting to his fellow senators that the act be extended until after the war. Senator McNary would make it clear that the Republicans have not abandoned their objections to the act but are only withholding them until a more appropriate time.

Somewhat the same view is taken by Rep. Clifford Hope of Kansas, the ranking Republican on the house agriculture committee. This is, as Hope says, a matter properly for the house ways and means committee, but Hope's personal attitude is significant because he comes from the heart of the farm belt where the opposition to the reciprocal program is strongest. He also has had a good deal to do with shaping Republican party expressions on agricultural policy.

House Republicans are more aggressive in their opposition to the trade agreements act than the Republicans in the senate. Nevertheless as Rep. Hope says, it is a poor time to raise the issue and no harm can be done by continuing the act during the war. Also there is some suggestion in the house of providing, as has been done with some of the war legislation, that congress could terminate the act at any time by concurrent resolution—that is by majority action of both houses without the signature of the president.

Any such action by congress should be accepted not as indicating a change of heart on the part of the Republicans but rather as their contribution to national unity and to the strengthening of the government in its war-time dealings with foreign governments.

Republicans might not be willing to admit it, but I have a strong suspicion that some of the more farsighted among them are thinking that if the Republicans come into power in the 1944 elections, they just might want to keep the reciprocal trade act. As a matter of self-interest, it is a most useful weapon for the government in breaking down trade restrictions against us by other nations.

Republicans might keep it as the Democrats kept the Hawley-Smoot tariff. The Democrats denounce the Hawley-Smoot act as a monstrosity but they have never seriously tried to get rid of it. In fact, the administration finds this high tariff a useful reservoir from which to trade concessions under the reciprocal power.

* * *

Republicans are steadily broadening their outlook. For instance, Gov. Stassen of Minnesota represents a new broader-gauge statesmanship that is finding voice also among numerous other younger Republicans. They know, as Gov. Stassen says, that while we might not want to put all of our eggs in the international basket, we should place some of them there on the chance that they might hatch something better than recurring wars.

ASKS FARMING BE CLASSED AS WAR ESSENTIAL

Bricker to Present Ohio Plan To Governors of Eleven Midwest States.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— A program to alleviate farm labor and machinery shortages will be presented by Gov John W. Bricker to chief executives of 11 midwestern agricultural states meeting at Des Moines, Ia., next Monday.

Bricker said the plan, recommended by the Ohio War Agricultural committee which predicted yesterday that 1943 Ohio farm production would drop 11 per cent below the 1942 level, was based on surveys by state and private agricultural agencies.

It urges the federal government to:

"Recognize agriculture as a war industry essential in securing priorities for equipment, supplies and manpower; release immediately farm machinery and equipment and supplies now in factories, branch houses and the hands of dealers so that it can be used by farmers in spring operations;

"Have the war production board immediately raise steel allotments for the manufacture of farm equipment to at least 50 per cent of 1941 production x x x ; furlough skilled farm workers in armed services, unless they are already in foreign service or specialized training before May 1, so they will be available for 1943 planting and harvesting;

"Eliminate red tape hampering the farmers' efforts to obtain machinery, material and supplies and free his time for productive efforts on the farm; lift restrictions immediately in time for spring planting season since indications are that ample nitrogen for fertilizer is available."

The committee informed the governor 11,000 Ohio farms would be abandoned this year and farmers had 36 per cent less hired labor and 24 per cent less family help than a year ago

The group estimated approximately the same number of acres would be farmed this year as last but commented it could "not be farmed as well or as intensively."

Serious feed shortages can be expected next fall and winter if yields are normal and the same acreage is planted in 1943 as last year, the group asserted.

SENATE OK'S $12,000,000 SUBSIDY PLAN

Measure to Retain Present Aid Figure For Local Governments Approved.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — The state's annual subsidy to local governments would be continued at $12,000,000 a year under a bill approved by the senate and sent to the house today.

Sen. Maurice W. Lipscher (D-Mahoning) sought unsuccessfully to have the amount increased to $17,000,000 a year on the ground that expenses of the cities and counties had increased heavily.

His Democratic floor leader, Sen. William M. Boyd of Cleveland, said he believed the voters approved the $12,000,000 figure when they reelected Gov. John W. Bricker last November.

The measure was passed 31 to 1, with Lipscher casting the dissenting vote.

The senate also approved a bill to allow members of the armed forces to operate an automobile without a driver's license if they possessed a license before entering the service.

Another provision of the bill, intended to help merchants cope with a shortage of delivery men, would lower from 18 years to 16 the age limit for issuance of chauffeurs' licenses.

The bill will be considered next by the house.

Proposed legislation to authorize creation of a state highway patrol auxiliary, consisting of not more than 200 men, struck a snag when it came up for a vote in the senate, and action was postponed

While the measure is intended primarily to make guards available for conservancy district dams, the phrasing would make possible the protection of only those dams on the state highway system, Sen. Theodore M. Gray (R-Miami) told the senate.

The bill was expected to be brought up again today with its language revised.

The house conservation committee killed a bill by Rep. Henry R Metcalf (R-Franklin) proposing to increase the fishing license fee from 50 cents to $1. The state conservation division told the committee this was no time to increase the fee.

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

CHICAGO—This is not going to be contentious but something on the learned side about oleomargarine, so if you have something else to do you may be excused.

Although we are very hard up for butter and will not be able to meet the demand, we still have on our books federal and state laws against margarine which some medical authorities have indorsed as a good substitute. It is made of both animal fat and vegetable oils derived from cottonseed, the soybean and coconuts and, in some cases, of a mixture of both. In some cases, too, it contains a proportion of real butter.

Pegler

There is a strong prejudice or superstition against margarine, a hangover from the sensational pure food and drug crusade of 40 years ago when pious deacons and old ladies would get cockeyed on patent medicines to cure the misery, never suspecting that they were rum pots.

Some of the oleo was misrepresented as real butter and much of it was sold as butterine and, no doubt, in those experimental days it did contain some fragments of hide, hoof and horn and some of it turned rancid.

Taking advantage of this, the dairy states lobbied through federal legislation to restrict the sale of margarine and cast suspicion on it for the benefit of the dairy industry. Although its parole report has been excellent since then, people nevertheless remember that margarine once was indicted by the grand jury, so to speak.

The federal government requires a tax of one-fourth of a cent a pound from the manufacturer and a license tax of $6 a year from the retailer and various states have tariffs running from five to 15 cents a pound.

Pennsylvania collects $500 a year from each jobber and $100 from each retailer in addition. The result is that, in Pennsylvania, about 70 per cent of the margarine is sold by chain stores and comparatively few independent dealers handle it. Montana collects $1000 a year from the distributor and $400 from the retailer. In Minnesota, the tariff is 15 cents a pound on margarine containing less than 65 per cent of animal fat. Wisconsin, Nebraska and Washington state collect 15 cents a pound on all margarine and the rate is 10 cents in North Dakota and Wyoming and a nickel in Idaho, Utah and Iowa.

Margarine is sold uncolored, although most butter is artificially colored so as to present the year around rich appearance that is natural only in the spring, and some butter is artificially flavored, too. However, vegetable coloring matter is sold with margarine to be mixed in by the consumer if he wants to. It appeals only to the eye, though. It makes no difference in the quality or taste, and if butter were sold without coloring it would not be perceptibly gayer in appearance than margarine, ten months of the years

Recently, the same federal government which stigmatizes margarine by the tax and the retail license fee, has been buying quantities of it, nevertheless, for the fighting men simply because there is not enough butter to be had. The Thomas E. Wilson company, packers, now can supply only about 25 per cent of the business tendered so perhaps we will be lucky to get even marge, as the British call it, by the end of the year. The John F. Jelke company, whose product is made solely of vegetable oil, has sold about 25 carloads to the army in the last few weeks. The government will lake, for all purposes; including lend-lease, more than 100 million pounds this year.

Apparently, in such situations, any interested party can buy medical opinion to defend the virtues of his own goods or disparage the other man's. Thus, the dairyman probably can cite learned verdicts that margarine is axle grease and unfit food for man or beast, which would be a harsh arraignment of the army in view of the purchases for soldiers.

On the other hand the margarine producers have medical opinions which insist that oleo is practically leaping with vitamins and suggest that the tariffs and other fees were imposed not for the public protection, but as trade restrictions of doubtful legality.

Anyway, if margarine is bad for people, no tariff makes it any better.

GET PHYSICALS

200 Draftees Go To Columbus For Examinations.

More than 200 Mansfield draftees, most of whom were of the 18-19 age group, left Selective Service Boards No. 1 and 2 yesterday and today for physical examination and subsequent induction into U. S. service at Ft. Hayes, Columbus. Even larger calls are indicated for April, board officials said, although exact numbers have not been revealed.

Board 3, serving the county outside of Mansfield and Madison township, will send two groups yet this month, on March 18 and 25. Another large quota is to be sent in April, board attaches were informed.

April quotas of the city boards will undoubtedly be the largest to date, board officials said, Board 3 has had larger calls in the past few months than any other of the Mansfield boards.

Draftees are permitted to return home for a week following their induction, under the present plan, unless they prefer to remain following their induction.

DEATH CLAIMS R. E. CAMPBELL

Cocktail Lounge Proprietor Taken By Death; Had Been Ill Four Days.

Ralph E. Campbell, 65, well known proprietor of Campbell's Cocktail Lounge, 17 South Walnut street, died this morning in General hospital following a four-days illness of heart trouble.

Mr. Campbell was born in Zanesville, Sept. 15, 1878, but had resided in Mansfield 40 years. Prior to coming here he had spent three years in Alaska at the turn of the century when he responded to the gold rush lure. He was preceded in death in 1932 by his wife, Mrs. Maude Trumpower Campbell. The home was at 135 West Fourth street.

Mr. Campbell is survived by a stepdaughter, Mrs. Eugene Buhrman; an aunt, Mrs. Henrietta Wappner, and an uncle, P. A. Michael.

The body is at the Jones Memorial where funeral services will be conducted at 3 p. m. Saturday. Rev. Grover E Swoyer of First Lutheran church officiating. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

Up and Down THE STREET

Did you ever see a sniff kit? To sniff one is to gain a better understanding of it. They are compact little kits, with five lightly corked bottles fitted inside. In each little bottle is the makings of a—(supply your own adjective) odor, suggestive of various types of poison gases with which Civilian Defense organizers believe their auxiliary police and air raid warden should be familiar. These civilian officers are supplied with the odoriferous outfits.

Two Mansfield brothers who have been thousands of miles apart in the armed forces know now that it's a small world during war-time. Returning home from a year's service in Hawaii, Cpl. Pete Kunz changed trains in Chicago and as he boarded the Mansfield-bound coach he saw his brother, Nick Kunz, get on at the other end. They rode home together. Nick, who is in navy training at Great Lakes, Ill., was returning for his first leave. Neither knew the other was homeward bound. They are sons of Mr. and Mrs. John Kunz, 21 Orchard street.

Cleve Smith, 266 North Diamond street, told Patrolmen Floyd Bowers and John Grohol last night it was bad when his sugar was stolen but it got much worse when the vandals stole his razor, his pants and his bedding, while he was sleeping in a "Flats cider joint." The patrolmen arrested Willie Johnson and Thelma King on petit larceny charges after they found the bedding and the pants at the King woman's Longview avenue home. Later they arrested George Short and confiscated his jug of cider in connection with the robbery of Smith.

LABOR OPPOSES 'WOMEN'S WEEK'

Objects to 52-Hour Proposal Offered By Ohio Senate Commerce Committee.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Organized labor objected vigorously today to the senate commerce and labor committee's bill fixing a 52-hour work week for women, with provisions for war plants to exceed that limit.

Ted Silvey, secretary-treasurer of the Ohio CIO, asserted any such legislation would tend to drive women out of war production because they could not bear the extra hours.

He sent special delivery letters to 1385 local CIO leaders urging them to work for the bill's defeat.

Phil Hannah, secretary-treasurer of the Ohio Federation of Labor, also called upon his membership to register opposition.

The proposed relaxation of present laws regulating the employment of women and minors was recommended for passage by the committee late yesterday after four weeks of deliberation.

The employers generally gave their approval, and committee members said the bill had Gov. John W. Bricker's endorsement.

The bill probably will be brought up for a vote in the senate next Tuesday or Wednesday.

While the 52-hour a week minimum is set for all industries, plants manufacturing war materials could work women and minors additional hours in emergencies. They must report the extended schedule within 10 days to the state inspector of workshops in the industrial relations department.

If the inspector deemed a continuation of the extended hours harmful to the women employes, he could cite the situation to the state health director, who could require the employer to modify the working schedule.

The health director also would be empowered to prevent employment of women and minors in occupations considered harmful.

DAMAGE HEAVY

Engineer Says Thaw Will Put County Roads in Bad State.

With repeated freezes and thaws, occasioned by abrupt temperature changes, Richland county roads will be in the worst condition in years, after the spring thaw, County Engineer Howard Sword said today.

To take care of emergency repairs, the county crusher, Sword said, is now located near Pavonia where ballast from the old Erie railroad right-of-way is being utilized for inexpensive and more or less temporary repairs.

Sword said he had divided the county into four sections to expediate the matter of inspection with State Route 30 as an east and west dividing line and State Route 13 as the north and south division. Extensive damage was found on the roads south of State Route 30 where he has completed his investigation, Sword said.
